Is Rotary Speaker

DR. W. R. NEWTON

ROTARY CLUB HEARS DR. NEWTON WEDNESDAY

Periodical health examinations as a personal preventive medicine was discussed in a paper by Dr. W. R. Newton before the noon meeting of the Cameron Rotary Club Wednesday.

Dr. Newton prefaced his address for the short discussion of the so-called iron lung which he said had been instrumental in saving many lives since its invention. He discussed its operation briefly, and said he thought the Rotary Club could sponsor an iron lung in Cameron, but felt more consideration should be given before undertaking to finance it.

The luncheon was attended by the largest number since the organization in April. Among the guests were M. E. Ashley of Milano, Joe Bill White of Cameron, and James Brock of Cameron.

The Rotarians were happy to have (Turn to page 7)

J. C. Penney Company In Birthday Sale

One year ago on August 12, 1937, J. C. Penney, founder of the Penney stores which operate in every state in the union, opened his Cameron store and placed in charge Gordon M. Howerton, who takes pleasure in inviting the public to the birthday sale now in progress.

"We are delighted as we look back over the year which has passed. Our business has grown to large proportions and our great family of customers have come to know the value of the Penney system of merchandising. It is with a high degree of (Turn to page 9)

LEWIS W. BASSETT DIES IN DALLAS

Lewis Washington Bassett, age 76, 505 West 10th, Street, Dallas, passed away at a sanitarium in Dallas Monday. He is survived by four sisters, Mrs. E. B. Muse, Mrs. Howard P. May, Dallas, Mrs. Hope McCalla, Houston and Mrs. John Watson, Cameron. Body was sent to Brenham for services and interment Thursday.

Neck Broken, Man Placed in Jail, Dies Here on Monday

Lee Arnold, 38, an employee of the Main Line Division of the Lone Star Gas Company, and a resident of Temple, died at 4 p. m. here Tuesday in a local hospital following injuries sustained in an automobile accident near the Milam County line at Rogers.

Arnold suffered a broken neck, was rescued from the wrecked machine by residents of a nearby liquor store and later placed under arrest by Keith Blankenship, constable at Buckholts, and was brought to the Cameron jail.

Dr. C. G. Swift, attending physician at the local hospital said Arnold's neck was broken in three places. Dr. Swift was called to the hospital and there an X-ray revealed the extent of the dead man's injuries.

Although he had sustained fatal injuries in the accident, he was held in jail from shortly after 8 p. m. until after midnight Friday.

It was believed that officers did not know the extent of his injuries.

Arnold was injured when the car in which he was riding with Cecil Smith, another employee of the Lone Star Gas Company, overturned.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church in Elm Mott in Bell County, Wednesday at 4 p. m. with Rev. Reavis, pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church and Rev. M. L. Rhodes of Waco officiating. Arnold was a member of the Masonic Lodge and the Masons had charge of the services.

Cameron Gets New Daily Bus Line

A new bus line from Cameron to Temple began its operation schedule on Tuesday, Aug. 9, it was announced by S. A. Cottle of the Milam Hotel. The bus will leave Cameron for Hearne twice daily at 8:15 a. m. and 7:15 p. m. Likewise the bus will leave Cameron twice daily for Temple at 11:05 a. m. and 9:20 p. m. The route is over the old Hearne highway via Maysfield and Branchville.

Mr. Cottle said the bus line is owned by the company now operating the Temple-Marlin line. The schedule calls for busses daily.

New Agriculture Teacher to Arrive Here August 15

Tom Stokes, newly elected teacher of Vocational Agriculture at Yoe High School, will be in Cameron during the week of August 15.

He will spend the entire week with E. D. Parnell, Vocational Agriculture teacher, in order that he may become more familiar with the teaching set-up here.

Parnell is to leave the latter part of August for A & M College where he will teach next fall. Stokes is a recent graduate of A & M College and comes to the local school highly recommended.

Band Concert on Courthouse Lawn Friday Night

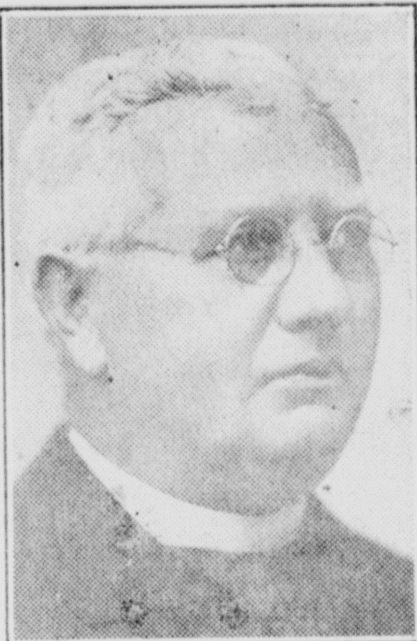

The Yoe High School Band will play a free public concert on the courthouse lawn next Friday night, August 12, at 8 p. m. This will be the first in a series of public concerts to continue until opening of school.

The concerts will consist of a variety of numbers picked to suit the tastes of everybody, marches, overtures, novelty numbers, and light concert numbers.

It is planned these concerts will be means by which the general public may pass a few hours enjoying the music and mixing and mingling with old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Darwin R. Enoch and son of Austin are located in Cameron, in one of the Clark apartments.

42 Years a Priest

REV. GEORGE APEL

Forty-two years ago Rev. George Apel, pastor of St. Monica's Church in Cameron, was ordained to the priesthood. On August 15, he will celebrate his almost fifty years in the ministry of his church.

On August 11, fourteen years ago, he moved to Cameron. At that time the local parish had a beautiful but inadequate church building. Following a disastrous fire in which the old St. Monica's was destroyed, plans were made by Rev. Apel for a new church and the result is the present magnificent and beautiful new St. Monica's.

The parish has made great progress under his leadership. Throughout his ministry, he has lived in Texas. One of the enjoyable periods of his life was a visit to Europe some years ago. Father Apel, in addition to building the new St. Monica's church which was dedicated on June 27, 1928, by Bishop C. E. Byrne of Galveston, has built a new school building for the parish. This building, a modern new brick, was built in 1935.

Members of the parish and friends of Father Apel will rejoice with him in the coming celebration of his 42 year as a priest of the Roman Catholic Faith.

GERALD C. MANN

"Moral Shot in Arm," Texas Need, Says Gerald C. Mann

The greatest need in Texas politics today is a moral shot in the arm, Gerald C. Mann, candidate for attorney general who polled over 328,000 votes in the first primary, told a large audience on the courthouse square here Thursday morning. Waging the same strenuous campaign that he made in the primary, Mann had seven speeches in Central Texas on his Thursday program.

"We need in public office men of character and courage, men who will put principles above gain and who will follow the dictates of their con-

AGENT TELLS HOW TO SELL COTTON

"Normal Yields" are now being established for each individual farm in Milam County. It will be necessary that the State Office approve these "Normal Yields" before each farmer can be issued a "marketing quota."

If farms are under their allotted cotton acreage, these farms will be issued marketing cards as soon as the acreage is checked in the County Office. Acreage checking is being done as fast as possible. If farms are over cotton allotments, the producers will have an opportunity to destroy the excess acreage. If the excess is not destroyed, they will be given a temporary marketing card for a limited amount of lint (red card,) or by making bond (with two sureties) to secure payment of any possible tax, they can be issued a white marketing card. In such cases, at the end of the season, it will be determined the amount of tax due, if any. If tax is due, upon payment of same, the bond will be cancelled, and if none is due, the bond will be cancelled.

Producers who do not want to make bond before selling cotton may pay the tax and, if it develops that no tax is due, the tax will be refunded.

Producers will receive individual notices of "Normal Yields" and "Marketing Quotas" as soon as they are available.

Rotarians Present Future Farmer Boy With Sweater

James Brock, member of the Texas Poultry Judging team, was a guest of the Cameron Rotary Club Wednesday at noon, receiving a beautiful sweater with insignia of the future farmer of America. The sweater was presented to James by the Cameron Rotary Club, one of four gifts to members of the judging team. Presentation was made by Dr. Clifford G. Swift, president of the Rotary Club. In response, James thanked the Rotarians for the fine gift. Sweaters were given by the Cameron Rotary Club, Cameron School Board, Chamber of Commerce, and the Lion's Club. Other members of the team are Lyle McDermott and Dana Monroe.

E. D. Parnell, teacher of vocational agriculture in the Cameron school, will be a guest of the Rotary Club next Wednesday at which time the president of the Chamber of Commerce (also a guest of the Rotarians, will present the sweater to the teacher.

Mr. Parnell, coached the team and will go with the team to Kansas City in October. This is the second team from Yoe High School to represent the State of Texas in the last three years.

MILDRED ALYNE LEWIS DIES HERE MONDAY

Mildred Alyne Lewis, ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lewis, died Monday morning, Aug. 8th, at 9 o'clock after a month's illness of typhoid fever. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock with Rev. J. P. Love, rector of the Episcopal church officiating. Interment was made in Salem cemetery.

Little Mildred was born August 15, 1927, in Cameron, and had made her home here all her life with the exception of the short time her parents lived in LaGrange, and had moved back to Cameron two months ago. She had many friends and will be missed by her classmates at opening of school.

Surviving are her parents, two sisters and three brothers.

Mrs. Jack Reavis of Dennison has returned to her home after spending several days visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Lester Slaughter of Cameron. Mrs. Reavis, formerly Miss Winona Slaughter, is a graduate of Yoe High School and has many friends in Cameron.

Gets Lion Honors

F. E. WOODRUFF

F. E. Woodruff Named Lion Governor

F. E. Woodruff, manager for Texas Power and Light Company, has received appointment as deputy district governor of the Lion's Clubs of Texas. The announcement was made at the noon luncheon of the Lion's Club here Tuesday by Lion District Governor Blake of Beaumont, who delivered an address to the club on Lionism, and its beneficial effect on international relations.

The appointment of Mr. Woodruff as deputy district governor, is the second such honor that has come to the Cameron Lion's Club in the past few years, the first being Rev. O. C. Acree. Mr. Woodruff has been active in the Lion's Club for more than a year since its reorganization and members of the club feel that he is being recognized for the contribution he has made to the success of the local club and Lions in the district where he will preside.

W. C. Weise, president of the club, reported that the extension committee has made a visit to Rockdale with view of organizing a Lion's Club in that City.

Gordon Wowerton of the J. C. Penney store, said a safety sign had been reported that the extension committee has made a visit to Rockdale with view of organizing a Lion's Club in that City.

Ad Hall Sends 10th Grade Pupils Here

Tenth grade pupils of the Ad Hall District will attend school in Cameron this year, it was announced here Wednesday.

The Ad Hall School Trustees and Patrons, it was said, have elected to take advantage of the Cameron schools and they see the advantages of sending their pupils in the tenth grade as well as those of the 11th grade who for the past two years have attended Cameron schools. Hereafter the 10th grade has been taught in the Ad Hall school.

In a statement of welcome to the Ad Hall Students and praise for the Trustees and Patrons, Superintendent E. A. Perrin of the Cameron Schools said: "This decision is undoubtedly a wise one for several reasons. It (Turn to page 4)

Copley Praises Dallas Rotarians

John Copley, druggist at the New Cameron Drug Company, returned Wednesday from Dallas where he spent several days on business. While in that city, Mr. Copley, a member of the Cameron Rotary Club, attended the luncheon of the Dallas Rotary.

Mr. Copley said Dallas Rotary Club has around 340 members and 307 were present for the weekly luncheon.

"Small town Rotarians would do well to attend one of these luncheons. I was never treated better in my life and I feel I have a greater appreciation for the spirit of Rotary since meeting with those fine fellows in Dallas."

Mr. Copley is an enthusiastic member of the local club and has given much thought to the organization.

NEW RECORD HIGH FOR RURAL TRANSFERS

Cameron public schools will open the fall term on September 12. This opening date is for the white and the colored school. The Mexican school will open on September 26.

All members of the faculty will return except Miss Mary Newton, who was married in June, Harvey Yoe, Miss Barganier, Miss Wood and Mr. Parnell.

Mrs. Katherine Robbins, former county superintendent, and recently with the College of Industrial Arts, Denton, Texas, has been elected to teach the seventh grade formerly taught by Miss Newton.

Miss Audrey will succeed Miss Wood and will teach music. She is a graduate of Baylor with a degree in public school music and two years experience.

Robert Kluge will teach in the Ada Henderson school to succeed Mr. Yoe, who has accepted a position with the Federal Government. Mr. Kluge is a graduate of Teacher's College at San Marcos and has taught four years, the last three at Westoff.

Mrs. Sinia Brewer will be one of the new teachers in the Ada Henderson school. She is a graduate of the Teacher's College in San Marcos, and will teach physical education for the girls and students of the lower grades.

Miss Alice Stallings will be librarian. She is a graduate in library science from the College of Industrial Arts, and has been librarian in the Belton High School for the last three years.

Thomas Stokes, graduate of Texas A & M, with one year of experience in teaching will succeed Mr. Parnell as teacher of vocational agriculture. Mr. Parnell has obtained a leave of absence for one year to teach in A & M College.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. OTTO J. KELM

Funeral services for Mrs. Otto J. Kelm were held at 3 p. m. Friday, August 5, from the family residence in Ben Arnold with Rev. R. Kalkbrenner, pastor of the Lutheran Church, officiating. Interment was in the Ben Arnold Cemetery.

Pall bearers were her nephews, Edwin Boedeker, Billie Boedeker, Herbert Kelm, Walter Kelm, Albert Habel and Oscar Boeker. Her nieces and a few close friends served as flower girls. They were Mrs. Henry Lehman, Mrs. Henry Kettler, Mrs. Henry Stolz, Mrs. Herman Barkemeyer, Mrs. Raymond Barkemeyer and Misses Hilda and Esther Kelm.

Mrs. Kelm was born October 30, 1869, in Austin County. Before her marriage to Otto J. Kelm on Jan (Turn to page 4)

T. P. Gunnels of Milano and children, Alma Jean, a daughter, Tal-madge, Thomas and Jimmie left their home Wednesday for a vacation trip to Galveston. Mr. Gunnels has just recently become a new reader of the Cameron Herald. Miss Alma Jean is a student in the University of Texas and has been in school there for one and a half years. She returned home this week from summer school in time to enjoy the vacation at Galveston.

CARDUI

In this modern time something wonderfully worth while can be done for practically every woman who suffers from functional pains of menstruation. Certain cases can be relieved by taking Cardui. Others may need a physician's treatment.

Cardui has two widely demonstrated uses: (1) To ease the immediate pain and nervousness of the monthly period; and (2) to aid in building up the whole system by helping women to get more strength from their food.

Loretta Young is Star of Superb Film Opening at Cameron Theatre Today

Hollywood has made "Four Men and a Prayer."

And the transition of this popular story, read by millions in book form or magazine serial, promises to provide a number of surprises when it reaches the screen.

Of primary interest, comes the report that the film has not deviated from the original plot.

So when citizens of Cameron visit the Cameron Theatre during the scheduled run of "four men and a Prayer," which opens today they will find that this 20th Century-Fox production has passed up all the ultra-saccharine cliches of the love motif for the noblest of he-man instincts... the unswerving faith of four sons in their father's honor.

Light-hearted Loretta

Beautiful gay Loretta Young in practically the only feminine role, is the girl whose love for one of the brothers serves as a shining beacon through clouds of intrigue... and even distrust of her.

Her romantic interest is for Richard Greene, which means that Cameron Theatre patrons will have their glimpse of the sensational new British star discovery.

Greene however, along with Geo. Sanders, David Niven and William Henry are the four men who forsake everything in their careers to track down around the world, the menace which cashied their beloved father, C. Aubrey Smith, out of the army in disgrace and then brought death to a great soldier.

Cast of 3,000

In a cast of 3,000, encompassing the characters of 21 nations of the world, this picture has been assembled with all the sweep and grandeur of the book by David Garth and in the capable hands of John Ford, it has been placed upon the screen.

J. Edward Bromberg, John Carradine, Alan Hale, Reginald Denny, Berton Churchill and Barry Fitzgerald are also featured in the screen play by Richard Sherman, Sonya Levien and Walter Ferris. Darryl F. Zanuck selected Kenneth Macgowan as associate producer.

Mrs. B. C. Talley and son, Bonds Talley of Bennettsville, S. C., Mrs. Jim Beall of Parkhurst, N. C., J. F. Gaither, Miss Mary Gaither of Fort Worth, Mrs. Graham Robinson and daughter, Miss Mary Graham Robinson of Ft. Worth, formed a delightful house party for the week end in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gaither, Country Club Heights.

Eddie Allison Plans Making Highest Farmer Degree

Eddie Allison, third year student Vocational Agriculture, and winner of the Lone Star Farmer degree at the Texas FFA Convention this summer, plans on making an effort to secure the American Farmer degree, the highest to be awarded by the National organization.

Completion of 3 years in Vocational Agriculture, earning $287 on projects, securing 4 certificates of merit from the State Association, being a member of the C. H. Yoe winning team in crops judging, and co-operating in various local projects, are some of the high points in Allison's program to date. To win the higher degree, he must earn at least $500 on projects, secure 3 additional certificates of merit and carry out an outstanding program of agriculture in his community. "I'm willing to try it," Allison has said. He plans to feed out eight hogs, two hundred broilers, and grow several acres of crops for the coming year. The American Farmer degree is only awarded by the National Association at its annual convention in Kansas City. It will be a year, possibly two, before Allison makes the application for the degree.

Mrs. J. J. Bayard and son Clifton of Dallas, are here on a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Spiller.

FARM CLUB NEWS

Maydell Malone,
Davilla 4-H Club,
Davilla, Texas:

Learning to embroidery, clean house, and refinish and arrange furniture will be a part of the bed room work for 4-H clubs during 1939, according to plans discussed at the meeting of the Davilla 4-H club Wednesday, August 3rd.

A request was made by Miss Ada Mae Hinman, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, for the club to suggest improvements that could be made in 4-H club work in 1939 and in the yearly county wide encampment. In connection with the work for the coming year the only suggestion was a change in the form of the year books used; for encampment—no change—as all who attended said they were well pleased, especially with the place. Encampment was held at the Cameron Country Club.

The Davilla 4-H club met at the home of Mary Louise Robison.

After the business meeting and program, refreshments of ice cream with chocolate sauce and cake were served by the hostess.

Those present for the meeting were: Juanita White, Johnny Ruth

Wilson, Maydell Malone, Peggy Jean Robison, Dorothy Riddle, Lola Mae Witcher, Billie Frances Burns, Marjorie Warner, Vera Sanders, Mrs. A. A. Robison and the hostess, Mary Louise Robison.

Dorothy Porter,
County Home Dem. Agent,
Milam County:

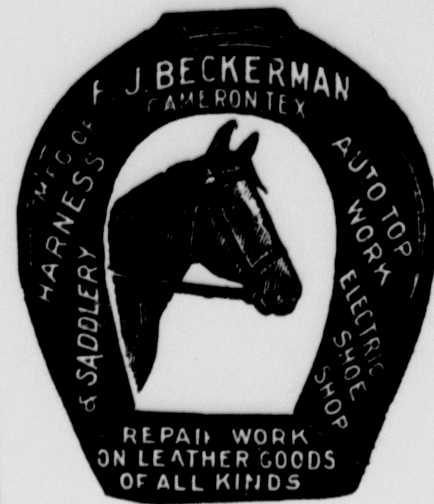

A cabinet is not all it should be until it is arranged for greatest efficiency thinks Mrs. Howard Schwarting, Kitchen Improvement Demonstrator of the Clarkson Home Demonstration Club. Mrs. Schwarting's cabinet is now so arranged that she can do each kitchen job with a minimum of reaching and moving. For example all the utensils for bread making from the mixing bowl to the baking pan are assembled on the left side of the sink on the top shelf of the lower section of the cabinet. Just above in the upper section of the cabinet are the dry ingredients so that the only move that has to be made away from this work center is a trip to the ice box, and last to the stove.

Materials for washing are likewise assembled and soiled dishes can be brought from the dining table to the left end of the cabinet, washed at the sink, scalded and dried and placed in the right upper cabinet without one extra motion. All movements are clock-wise which is quickest for right-handed people.

FOR SALE or Trade one enamel ice box worth $15. Prefer livestock. See Paul Marburger at his home.

GIDDY-UP NEW STYLE

• The gently rolling character of most Texas farm land lends itself admirably to tractor farming, and the number of tractors on Texas farms and ranches is growing by leaps and bounds. The chug-chug of an internal combustion engine is the modern giddy-up on Texas farms.

In keeping with its policy to provide Texans with the petroleum products they need, the Humble Company supplies motor fuels for every type of tractor. Most farmers, however, are buying their new tractors equipped with high compression motors; others are converting old-type tractors by installing high compression heads.

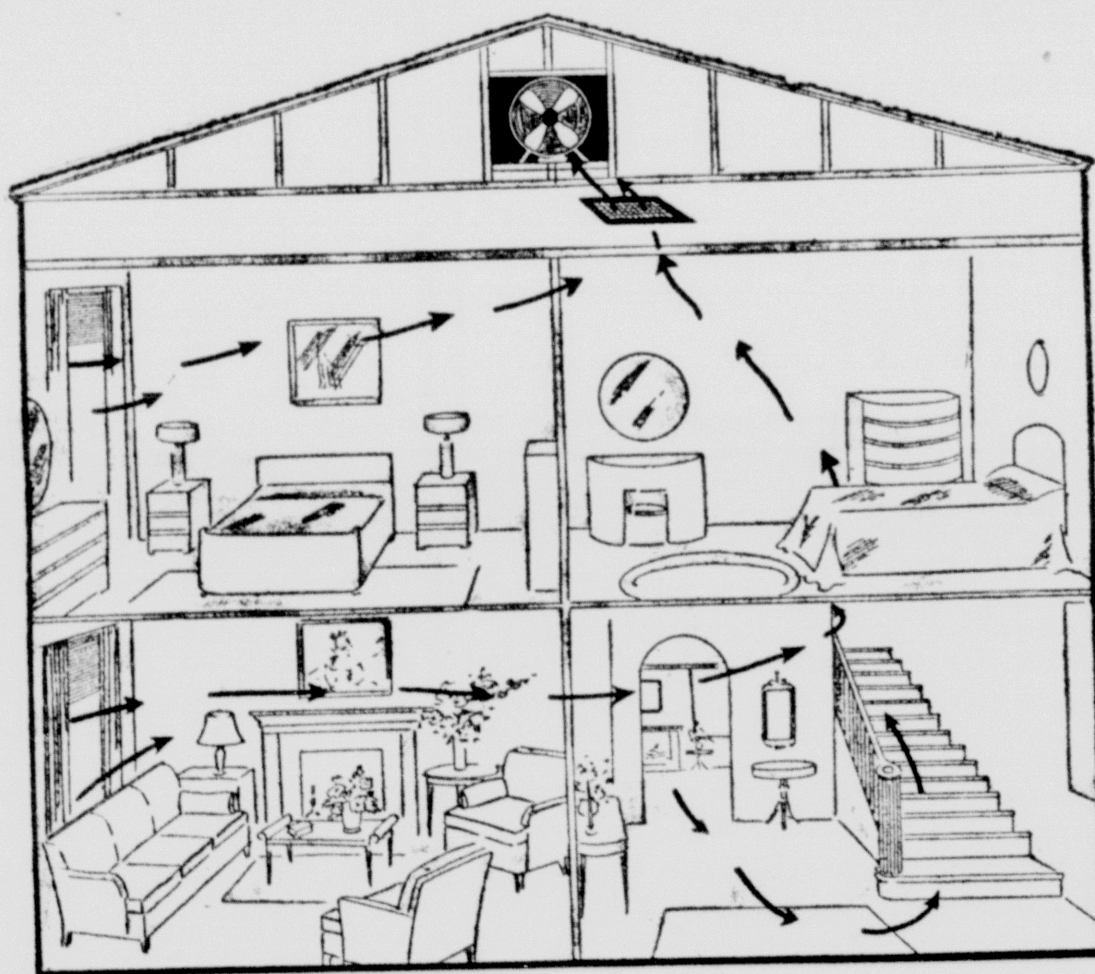

For these tractors, the Humble Company recommends Humble Motor Fuel. It is economical to buy, economical to use. It delivers full performance in everyday hard use. Try it. Judge its merits on the job. We're confident that you'll agree with other users who say—second to none.

attic fan ventilation

air conditions at low cost

You can make your home perfectly comfortable this summer with a small investment, and a much smaller operating cost. The attic fan ventilation system draws cool air into the house through the windows, expels heated air from the attic. Just a fan in the attic, a grille in the attic floor, and the trick is done. You sleep all night, comfortably and restfully, wake in the morning refreshed. Even through the heat of the day, the current of air moving through the house keeps it comfortable. Installation of this system is quick, easy and economical.

See your local Electrical Contractor or dealer, or ask about attic ventilation at this company's store.

Society News

This Week's social calendar presents an interesting array of activities for the younger society set, among them was the pretty tea given Tuesday afternoon from 5:30 to 7:30 by Mrs. A. J. Triggs, 820 North Lamar Avenue, honoring her guest, the attractive Miss Daphne Davenport of Plainview, who the past week was the house guest in the Triggs home. This was a pretty indoor-porch party where handsome potted plants and cut flowers made attractive the reception rooms and attractive lawn of the Triggs home, and was in keeping with the hospitality of the home. The hostess was assisted by Miss Lucille Dickard of Austin. Miss Davenport was a classmate of the son of the hostess, Billie Triggs at Baylor University the past term. While here she was honoree of a delightful swimming party given by Mrs. W. A. Bonds at Belton, and later a picnic luncheon was enjoyed by the guests. Gordon Suits, roommate of Billie Triggs at Baylor, was an out of town guest for the party, also lives in Plainview, but after receiving his degree this year from Baylor University, is now stationed in Dallas and is heard over WFAA in the Early Bird Program, three times a week. Mr. Suits possesses a beautiful baritone voice.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Cox have returned to Cameron from an extended tour of a number of southern states. While on this tour, Mr. Cox took advantage of his opportunities to look up records of his family in early American history. He is preparing a genealogy for his son, Joyce Cox now general attorney for the Santa Fe in Chicago. Mr. Cox said Wednesday they enjoyed the trip and found conditions more or less prosperous in the Carolinas and other southern states.

Alvin Dusek, partner with his brother, Franklin Dusek, and the Dusek Pharmacy here left Cameron this week for an extended vacation trip in South Carolina. He was accompanied by his sister, Miss Agnes Dusek, and they will visit Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Gunn of Orangeburg. Mrs. Gunn before her marriage was Miss Marjorie Dusek.

Mr. and Mrs. George Beckheusen of Milano will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Monday, August 15. They were married in Austin County when Texas had reached its half-way mark for the centennial year. On Sunday their large family of children, grand children, and one great grandchild arranged a celebration dinner at the family home on their farm near Milano. Mr. and Mrs. Beckheusen have lived in Milam County for many years, are well known and their many friends wish them many happy returns of the day on which they reach their fiftieth year of wedded bliss.

Mrs. Guy Haynes, teacher of piano, announces the opening of the fall term of her school of music on Sept. 1st. Mrs. Haynes said that it is important for those planning to take piano this year to get their courses of study organized before the school term begins. This will give all students plenty of time to be prepared for the first recital. Pupils and prospective pupils are requested to call Mrs. Haynes some time before Sept. 1st. She will teach at her home studio at 523 East 19th street, two blocks east of the Yoe High School building until the beginning of school on September 12, and following that, lessons will be given in her own music room in the Yoe High School gymnasium. Students who make early arrangements will be assured of a choice period in the fall school schedule.

Miss Patricia Batte of Cameron has returned from a week's visit in Rosebud where she was guest of Frances Stocklas, who arranged a house party for the week. Miss Isabel Cambell of Spur and Miss Lowrey Burleson of Gatesville, were among the guests. In all there were seven in the party. During the week they made trips to Temple, Marlin and Belton and on Tuesday night a dinner party was arranged by Miss Ernestine Green and a luncheon on Wednesday was arranged by Miss Green. Miss Batte reports a splendid visit with her friends in Rosebud.

A. A. Helms of Otey, Texas, long time a reader of the Herald, has been in Cameron for several weeks visiting old friends. Mr. Helms has renewed his subscription to the Herald and will read it for the next year.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Cox and cousin, Miss Mildred Thornton have returned from a delightful trip of a month. They visited many interesting places in the middle and New England states.

W. P. McCall who has been working in Beaumont the past six weeks, returned home Tuesday. Mr. McCall tells of the extreme hot weather there while in Beaumont.

Mrs. Bob Terry was a delightful hostess to the Tuesday bridge club at her home, 122 West 23rd street, on Tuesday. After a number of interesting games the hostess regaled her guests with dainty refreshments.

Repaint your home and pay for it on the time payment plan. Also buy our building materials on time payment. Anything you need in building materials and paints. See Don Weir at Grant Lumber Company.

Will Davis of Sharp, large land owner and business man, was a visitor in the Herald office on Wednesday morning. He congratulated the Herald on its fairness during the recent political campaign and thanked this newspaper on behalf of the W. Lee O'Daniel supporters, of which he is one, for its treatment of the candidate and publicity given.

Members of the Methodist church enjoyed a watermelon outing on the lawn of the First Methodist church Wednesday evening.

Miss Emma Howard Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Thomas, of Guase, received her B. A. degree at Southwestern University, Georgetown the past Tuesday night.

Gets Tech Honors

MRS. HUGO HORSTMANN

Mrs. Hugo Horstmann of Buckholts was elected treasurer of the senior class in the summer school at Texas Technological College at Lubbock.

Mrs. Horstmann has been attending summer school at Texas Tech and will teach this fall in the Buckholts school. She is the wife of Hugo Horstmann, a well known school teacher in Milam County. Before her marriage, she was Lina Turner of Buckholts. She has taught eight years in Milam County schools.

Friends in Buckholts and in other portions of Milam County will be glad to know that Mrs. Horstmann rated thus high in the estimates of her class mates of the senior class at Texas Tech. She is a native Milam County girl.

Miss Mary Bell Batte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Batte, received her M. A. Degree from Southwestern University, Tuesday evening. Miss Batte was part-time student and taught part-time the past term, and will teach in Georgetown high school this fall.

Kelm

12, 1893, she was Miss Minnie Boedeker. She has been a resident of Ben Arnold for the past 28 years.

Surviving her are five children, Elsie Kelm of Ben Arnold, Albert Kelm of Plainview, Otto Kelm of Cameron, Edwin Kelm of Ben Arnold and Edna Kelm of Ben Arnold, her husband, Otto J. Kelm; a stepmother, Mrs. T. H. Boedeker of Brenham, four brothers, Fred, T. H., Charlie and Leo Boedeker of Plainview four sisters, Mrs. Bertha Boedeker of Cameron, Mrs. Meta Habel of Chilton, Mrs. Mollie Nierbieck of Sagerton, Mrs. Clara Morgenthaler of Mart; two half sisters, Mrs. Emily Green of Brenham and Mrs. Lillie Muery of Gay Hill and Adolph Boedeker of Brenham; and four grandchildren.

Mrs. Kelm was a member of the Lutheran Church and had been a faithful member since 1888.

science without regard for political consequences.

"I pledge you now that as attorney general I shall have the courage to protect the people from their enemies on the inside as well as those on the outside. I shall sacrifice no principle to gain this office and when elected I shall sacrifice no principle to keep it."

Mann said this was the first time his name has appeared on the ballot although he has served the people by appointment as an assistant attorney general, secretary of state and as Washington representative of the Texas Planning Board.

He reviewed his successful fight on fraudulent stock brokers and raceteers while secretary of state when he exposed gangs of operators selling worthless securities in the state and subsequently wrote and secured passage of the securities act, and he challenged his opponent to cite any act of his 21 years in public office at Austin that might compare with the securities law.

Ad Hall

is hard for pupils to change schools for only one year. It takes at least a half year for pupils to become acquainted with their teachers and the system in general. That leaves only a half year for work to an advantage, whereas pupils coming for the tenth and eleventh grades, have a full year and a half of work after the adjustment period.

"In addition to the above reason it is wise, for a grade off at the top permits the teachers of the local school to give more time to the remaining pupils.

"There are four schools who send only their 11th grade pupils to Cameron. We invite them to consider the action of the Ad Hall citizenship, with the view of taking the same wise action in behalf of their own pupils.

Mrs. G. G. Green, Misses Bertha, Mable and Margarette Rouse, and Mrs. Tom Howard of Hearne visited Miss Irene Rouse Wednesday of last week.

Fred Hefti of Maysfield prolonged the life of a hungry editor this week when he brought into the Herald office a very fine melon raised on his farm. If other friends would follow Mr. Hefti's example, there would be less woe and more happiness in the sanctum of this old journal. Mr. Hefti left Wednesday for an extended visit with relatives in Austin.

Ginning Days are Here

To The Farmers:

Cotton ginning in this modern day requires modern equipment and experience as well.

The Matyastik Gins at Cameron and Clarkson, meet every because both plants are modern in every detail and our success has been built on satisfactory turn out and service to our patrons.

If you are not a patron of these gins, we invite you to bring us a part of your cotton. We will demonstrate to you that experience plus equipment gets the better results.

Our gin plants will be open early and late and everything will be arranged for the convenience of the farmers.

We have none but the best of men to run these plants. They are experienced and know the needs of the farmers.

We renew at this time our annual invitation to you for your ginning patronage and we thank the hundreds of patrons who in past years have brought their cotton to our gins and received the expert ginning service you can always expect at—pleasure that I announce this, our first anniversary sale in Cameron. In this sale, we are giving each man, woman and child in Milam County, a gift in savings that simply cannot be duplicated anywhere in the world. "Cameron and Milam County have been kind to us. We are showing our appreciation for this consideration in the best way we know how, that is, giving back to those who have made our business such a signal success, great savings on bright new fall merchandise."

In this issue of the Herald will be found a large display advertisement from the J. C. Penney Company announcing this anniversary sale.

The J. C. Penney organization is unique. During this sale, Mr. Howerton will tell the people about the principals of the Penney company. There are now approximately 30,000 employees. Mr. Penney who founded the J. C. Penney store back in 1902 said he had succeeded because he builds business by building men and every store manager is his partner. In all there are 1499 Penney stores in the United States. Each manager is a partner in the business and Cameron has found Mr. Howerton a fine interpretation of the Penney system.

Future Farmers To Hold Meeting

Members of the Cameron Future Farmer chapter will hold a regular meeting at the Agricultural room at Yoe High school, Thursday night, August 18, E. D. Parnell, advisor, states. All past and prospective members are urged to attend. Tom Stokes, the advisor for the 1938-39 school year, will be present. Officers will be elected for the new year and plans for the new year program will get under way, it was stated. The meeting will begin at 8 p. m.

Walter Lucas, 2nd place winner in a recent state news writing contest for Future Farmers, will enter contests next spring in an attempt to win first in the state contest. To enter state contests, a boy must first win federation and area contests. Lucas won both last year by wide margins. Lucas will write stories concerning Future Farmer activities and will present them in note book form when the contest begins. He will also write stories at the contest with both to be scored as a means of determining the winner.

The Burlington Home Demonstration Club met Thursday, July 28 in the home of Mrs. Chester Rogers. Mrs. Ed McAtee called the meeting to order. Mrs. Ben Kleypas read the minutes of the previous meeting. The club chose "Making the Interior of the Home More Attractive" as their subject to work up a program for the 1939 year book. The ladies made final arrangements for their monthly entertainment which was given July 29.

A program was given on "Making Christmas Gifts in the Home." Those taking part on this program were: Mrs. Otto Shuetze, Mrs. Chas. Litzman and Mrs. Chester Rogers. Mrs. Ben Kleypas, gave "Gifts for Our Children," Mrs. Ed McAtee, "Give Something Useful," Mrs. McSherry, "Wrapping Christmas Gifts."

THE WORD "QUALITY" takes an awful beating!

NO WORD in the English language gets kicked around like "Quality." It's gotten so folks have little respect for its real meaning anymore.

The big trouble is there are all kinds of "Quality" and EXPERIENCE is the only way you can tell the difference. For instance . . . some people have an idea the quality of $2 shoes is as good as the quality of $4 shoes. After they've bought one they know it isn't.

Remember, there are no miracles . . . and nobody is giving anything away these days. You get what you pay for—and that's all! So don't jump to conclusions every time you see the word "Quality" . . . investigate first!

If you want to see the last word in Quality there's always been only one word for it—that's K. L. Soleing Leather, and see the difference yourself!

Mrs. Rogers served a delicious plate to the following:

Mesdames Ben Kleypas, Chas. Litzman, Ed McAtee, Otto Shuetze, John McAtee, Wm. McSherry, Paul Dillon, Bill Faulkner, and Fred Hodges. The meeting came to a close with the singing of "Beautiful Texas." The club will meet again on August 11, in the home of Mrs. Fred Hodges.

Nat B. Wofford of Port Arthur came up Friday and was joined by his mother, Mrs. Hallie Jones Wofford.

TO THE FARMERS We Want Your Cotton--

Our modern gin plant in Cameron with all its equipment, awaits your service. This gin is one of the finest in Central Texas and its reputation for a better turn out is widely known among the farmers.

Again this year we ginned Cameron's first bale of 1938 cotton. Eight years out of nine, we have ginned the first bale.

We appreciate your business. Your patronage enables us to maintain a great gin plant and in turn, we give the farmers the best gin service they can find anywhere in Texas.

We have a large parking space and our gin is manned by expert ginner.

Bring your cotton to us for a better bale and more profitable production.

Read The Life Story of W. LEE O'DANIEL

556,000 Texans acclaimed him governor!

From obscurity a few months ago comes this man of Destiny. Who is he? What is the story back of the next governor of Texas?

In one of the most absorbing tales of modern times he tells his own life story.

The chronicle of this great success will be shortly published in installments in The Herald.

If you are not now a reader, come in and subscribe. You will like The Herald. It is the only newspaper in this section without prejudice and frank enough to tell the story of any news event exactly as it happens.

The Herald does not apologise for editorial blunders. The writing talent behind this old journal is properly seasoned by experience and intelligent enough to know right from wrong.

Based on its advertising rates The Herald can take only a limited number of new readers. COME IN TODAY!

In presenting the life story of W. Lee O'Daniel, it will be necessary for the Herald to run this story over a period of many weeks, possibly for more than a year, due to the large amount of material gathered by the writers and put into book form.

Readers will appreciate the tremendous task of bringing to them this most unusual story. It is the Saga of American success. The first installment will begin not later than the issue of August 18.

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Milam County—Greeting:

You are Hereby Commanded to Summon Nona Bailey by making publication of this citation one in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Milam County, to be holden at the court house thereof in Cameron, on the 5th day of September 1938, the same being the 1st Monday in September 1938, then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 3rd day of August, 1938, in a suit numbered on the docket of said court No. 11,648, wherein Earl Bailey is plaintiff and Nona Bailey is defendant, said petition alleging: Statutory grounds of Cruel treatment, care and custody of two minor children.

Herein fail not, but have before said court on the said first day of the next term thereof, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Witness, Penn Wolf, Clerk of the District Court of Milam County, Texas.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court, in Cameron, this the 3rd day of August, A. D., 1938.

PENN WOLF,

Clerk of the District Court, Milam County, Texas.

How CARDUI
Helps Women

Cardui is a purely vegetable medicine, found by many women to ease functional pains of menstruation. It also helps to strengthen women, who have been weakened by poor nourishment, by increasing their appetite and improving their digestion. Many have reported lasting benefit from the wholesome nutritional assistance obtained by taking Cardui. If you need help like this, get Cardui at the nearest drug store, read the directions and try it.

Chamber of Commerce
Postpones Barbecue

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday night voted to postpone the annual barbecue which had been scheduled for August 19.

The directors voted to hold the barbecue in conjunction with the firemen who will hold a convention here in October.

F. G. Blake of the highway committee, reported progress on the road from Milano to Caldwell.

E. A. Perrin of the educational committee, said that 294 students had transferred from the rural districts to the high school thus far. This number is considerably above all previous records.

The publicity committee was instructed to issue information on the advantages of Cameron schools through a series of articles and photographs.

R. H. McIntosh asked the Chamber of Commerce to assist in road work in the Cummings crossing vicinity so that people in that section could reach Cameron under all weather conditions. Commissioners' Court will be asked to do this work.

Commissioners' Court has been urged to appeal for a federal government project to clean out the channel of Little River. The directors authorized the secretary to write letters urging immediate construction of flood control dams on the Lampasas, the Leon and the San Gabriel rivers to save crops along Little River.

HOUSE CLEANING

When it was spring, we heard a lot about house cleaning. In fact the industrious house wife not only talked about it, but actually turned everything up-side-down in accomplishing the desired results. All the unnecessary things that can clutter together and which have been collecting for the past year are taken down, looked over, sorted out, and those things that are absolutely useless are disposed of.

Getting rid of the trash is just the beginning. The things that are to be kept are stored in their rightful place according to their importance and use. Everything is laid neatly and orderly to give a clean, efficient effect.

Furniture is repainted, walls and woodwork refinished, household things are arranged differently. The whole atmosphere is changed. When it is all over, the family sighs gratefully, but acknowledges the improvement and is happy once more in a neat, clean home. The effect too is obvious in the personality of the family. They all feel better, look better, and are better for the house cleaning.

We could advantageously try some house cleaning in ourselves, and even more often than once a year.

We let obstructing, foolish things gather in our minds to hinder us from putting forth our best efforts in living. We let hatred and grudges, sorrows an unkindnesses, misfortune and hardships, problems and worries, indifference and unfairness, and all the complexities of modern living wear and tear on our minds and bodies.

Why not do away with all the unnecessary, unessential details and get back to the normal, free human existence?

Texas
at her finger tips
...ready
for your call

At the finger tips of your telephone operator stands many million dollars' worth of equipment in Texas... buildings, switchboards in 315 offices; two and a half million miles of wire... ready day and night to carry your voice the length and breadth of Texas, and beyond.

Last year it took more than 23 million dollars to operate this system for you. Part of this was for materials and supplies. More than four million dollars went for local, state, and federal taxes, to help pay for your roads, schools, police protection, and so on. More than 11 million dollars for wages, to nearly 9,000 workers who are your neighbors in Texas, and who spent that 11 million dollars in this state... no small item in keeping Texas business moving.

The telephone company, like the men and women who operate it, is a part of Texas. Its investment here has been made to meet this state's need for friendly, dependable telephone service. It serves its own interests best by giving you the service you want, at reasonable cost to you.

Cameron Publicity Campaign Gets New York Results

Cameron's modern publicity campaign is getting results in a big way. Recently the New York Times published a photo of the Ben Milam statue in its photogravure section giving the date on which it was to be unveiled on the court house lawn at Cameron, and the name of the sculptor, Bryant Baker of New York.

Newspapers and magazines are co-operating with the Chamber of Commerce in Cameron and are giving liberal space to news items and happenings of interest in the Friendly City.

Newton

their sweetheart, Miss Ida Byrd Mayfield, at the noon luncheon. M. G. Cox has returned from a three weeks tour of a number of southern states and was present for the luncheon.

Dr. Newton, quoting from medical publications, read the following paper:

"Probably the strongest argument in favor of the periodic health examination is the fact that most diseases are preventable, and nearly all are controllable. It is necessary, however, that disease be discovered at a time when it is preventable or controllable, in order that the appropriate preventive treatment or measures for control be applied. One very effective means of prevention is for persons in apparently good health to visit their family physician at regular intervals for a physical and mental appraisal; this is why the periodic health examination is so valuable.

"Patients have everything to gain and nothing to lose by submitting periodically to a thorough examination. The mere refusal to be examined does not affect the development of disease, if the tendency is present; neither does unwillingness of the patient to admit conscious symptoms cause an already developed disease to delay its advance, or in time to disappear.

"It is now considered, short-sighted and wasteful to wait until an emergency compels them to see a physician. Regular examinations of healthy persons are economical, as compared with the cost and waste of unnecessary illness. Properly conducted, the periodic health examination reveals the weak spots in the armor of health, which should, and can in most instances, be strengthened.

"Relatively few persons know what a periodic health examination is, or have the slightest knowledge of its possibilities for the early discovery and prevention of disease, the promotion of better health, and the actual prolongation of life; and yet there are few, if any, who, if they knew that it were possible, would not rather keep well than suffer unnecessary disease and disability.

"Without examinations, and the advice resulting therefrom, many persons go through life apparently without knowing that they have impairments, and accept uncomplainingly discomforts and restrictions from relatively non-serious defects and abnormalities; others may be the unknowing victims of faulty habits, and of mentally depressing and adverse environment; while relatively few will be suffering from well established but undiscovered disease.

"Every opportunity should be taken to correct the attitude of grin and bear it that is adopted toward minor discomforts by many who neglect symptoms until disability or distress occurs.

"You will find yourselves, more often than not, to be well; and even if abnormalities are discovered, the majority of them will be capable of correction, and even serious conditions are usually subject to arrest and cure.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure (compare with this the foolishness of adopting the ostrich-like attitude of closing one's eyes and ears to facts, in the hope that the annoying symptoms may not be serious.)

"The cost of illness (even when relatively short,) compared with the cost of maintaining health and mental and physical efficiency is extremely low.

"Nearly everyone considers life insurance a good investment, although the investor usually must die to win; and if he does finally cash in on an endowment policy, he may be too old or too impaired in health to enjoy the security and comfort that it should provide. Compare this with the health examination which is really health insurance, from which one will surely reap much benefit in better health, greater freedom from disease, a happier and longer life, and a less decrepit and more serene old age."

Pioneer Who Likes the Snap of Modern Days

By LOUISE PREECE

Route 4, Box 1, Austin, Texas
(Copyright, 1933, by the Southwest Magazine Co.)

BEN S. PILLOW, of Austin, Texas, age 90, is one of Texas' oldest pioneers, having lived in the State since 1872. A telegrapher by trade, he has been in retirement for 25 years, but his old fingers are still nimble and he can sit down in front of a telegraph key and send messages—a bit slower—but as accurately as ever. Recently he celebrated his 90th birthday in the home that he built in Austin in 1873. Here he lives with his daughter, Mrs. Fred Petmecky, at 1403 W. 9th Street. He has three other living children, 15 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

BEN S. PILLOW,
Age 90, Austin, Texas.

"The life that we live to-day is too wonderful to describe," Mr. Pillow said. "I don't agree with some folk who say we are living too fast. I think we are living just fine. While I enjoyed the good old horse and buggy days, yet I also like the snap and bustle of these modern days. I could send messages over a wire at 16 years of age—and that was all we knew about electricity—but now we can cook with electricity, light with it, heat with it, run power machinery with it and talk with it. I am thankful that I lived to see all this marvelous development."

Largest Texas City in 1873

Born in Virginia in 1848, Ben S. Pillow came to Jefferson, Texas, from Duval's Bluff, Ark., in 1872, as manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Jefferson had just started on a boom that for a while made it the largest city in Texas.

A year later Pillow was transferred to Austin to assume management of the Western Union Telegraph Company's office there. He went through Houston on his way to Austin and laughs at what he saw. "Houston, the first time I saw it," Mr. Pillow relates, "had about 8,000 population. The leading hotel was the Hutchins House, a rambling 2-story building on Main Street, where is now located the 18-story Rice Hotel. It was raining and the Houston streets were awful. There was no paving—just plank sidewalks. I could hardly cross the street. Mud was deep, almost to boot-tops in places, but no one seemed to mind it. Just shows how we can get used to some things.

"Austin did not look like it would ever become a city," Mr. Pillow observed. "I remember its first street railway. Power was furnished by mules that pulled dinky cars back and forth. The mules would trot along lazily with their bells ringing. The first street car line was from the Central depot, on the avenue, to what is now the Scottish Rite Cathedral. Residents on the other side of town wanted the line, so they made up enough money to bring it out to Pecan Street, now Congress Avenue, the main thoroughfare. They received their money back in fares."

First Railroad in Texas

Mr. Pillow also remembers the time the first railroad entered Austin. When he came to Texas there were few railroads. The I. & G. N. had built as far as Palestine.

"The I. & G. N. railroad first operated from Houston to Hempstead and was the only railroad in Texas when war between the States was declared," said Mr. Pillow. Later, in 1876, a branch line of the I. & G. N. was built from Hempstead to Austin.

"Before this railroad reached Austin, lumber and all other freight was hauled into the town by wagon teams. Where the old postoffice building in Austin now stands there was a log blacksmith shop that did a thriving business. People traveled either by horseback, or in wagons or carriages, and had to patronize this one shop for all repair work of this kind."

The friendship of O. Henry is recalled with pride by Mr. Pillow. During the time O. Henry lived in Austin, and worked there as teller in the bank, he was a frequent guest at the Pillow home. "His real name was Sydney Porter," said Mr. Pillow. "After leaving Austin he began writing stories under the assumed name of 'O. Henry.' Syd was a fine young man and I don't believe he got a square deal in his mix up with the bank. Some one had to be the goat, so they picked Porter."

Vividly Mr. Pillow recalls the burning of the old capitol building at Austin. He was clicking out messages when someone ran into his office and shouted, "The capitol is burning!" This old building had no fireproof vaults, and as a consequence many State and historical records were completely destroyed by fire.

Helped to Lay Capitol Corner Stone

When the present capitol was rebuilt, in 1880, of granite brought from Burnett, Mr. Pillow took part in laying the capitol corner stone. This ceremony was under the direction of the Masonic Lodge, of which he was then a member, and is now the oldest Master Mason in Austin.

Lawlessness in Texas was just about as bad, though on a smaller scale, in early times as in these times, thinks Mr. Pillow. But the Texas rangers did a great job in stamping it out.

"Captain Baylor was an outstanding ranger," according to Pillow. "Once Captain Baylor broke the Mexican law by going into that country and getting a murderer who had killed some one in Texas. The man, a citizen of Mexico, was clerking in a Mexican store. When Baylor walked in the store the murderer was measuring calico for a Mexican woman. Baylor dragged him out, put him on a horse and brought him back to Texas. Several shots were fired at Baylor by the Mexicans, but he escaped without injury. There was quite a row between the United States and Mexico because of this incident; however, the prisoner was delivered to the Texas sheriff where the murder was committed."

"Wes Hardin was a noted Texas frontier character that the rangers captured. He is said to have killed 20 men and everybody feared him. Quick as lightning on the draw with his two sixshooters, (he always carried two) his aim was deadly. Rangers Duncan and Armstrong went over to Pensacola, Fla., where Hardin lived with his father-in-law, caught him off guard and captured him without firing a shot. They brought him handcuffed to Austin and placed him in the county jail. In Comanche county he was tried for the murder of a deputy sheriff in DeWitt county and sent to prison for a long term. Pardon from the penitentiary by Governor Hogg, he went to El Paso and was shot and killed there by a man who had a grudge against him."

Knew Ben Thompson

Still another noted character whom Mr. Pillow knew well was Ben Thompson, at one time city marshal of Austin. Thompson is credited with half a dozen killings, but he always insisted he never killed a man except in self-defense.

Thompson had a real liking for Pillow and often would come to the latter's office to discuss his private affairs. "Ben Thompson was a friendly, likable fellow," commented Mr. Pillow, "but a very dangerous man when he went into action. Most of the men he killed were men who had first tried to kill him. He would beat them to the draw, and no man in Texas could draw a gun quicker and shoot straighter."

Thompson heard one day that a tough citizen from Llano, Texas, was in town, who had a reputation as a killer. Ben went home, slicked up in his best broadcloth suit, stovepipe hat and diamond pin. Then he came back up-town. At a street corner he met the tough citizen face to face. Walking up to him, Ben smiled and said: "I'm from Boston, doncher you know. I'm down here for my health. 'The hell you are,' said the tough one. 'Well, Mr. Boston Dude, I'll have to shoot a hole through that stovepipe hat.' He reached for his gun, but Thompson was a bit quicker and shot him in the side—just a slight flesh wound from which he recovered. Ben said to me after the shooting that he could easily have killed the fellow, but knew he was just a big braggart and not worth killing."

"At a street corner he met the tough citizen face to face."

Home-Made Matches

Matches were almost unobtainable during the war between the States. Mr. Pillow gives an interesting description of how matches were made at home during the war: "A 5-inch pine block, straight-grained, would be sawed down nearly to the bottom, all the way across about the width of a match, a jigsaw being used for the purpose. Then it was sawed about the width of a match the other way. But never was the block cut all way through. The tips were then dipped into a mixture of sulphur and phosphorus and matches left on the block to dry. After drying, the block would be spilt across both ways with a knife. But one had to be careful in breaking off a match, or the whole block would ignite. Matches were so scarce at times that it was common to see neighbors borrowing chunks of fire from each other. Finally matches came on the market in boxes and sold for 50c a box.

"Yes, times have changed a lot, but for the better," Mr. Pillow believes. "Now matches are given away with each package of purchased cigarettes. I like to recall the days that are gone—they were brave good days—but not so good for comfort and convenience as the days we are now living. The Lord has been kind and generous to us all."

Ghost Ship of the Far North

UNMANNED, for seven years an ice-sheathed phantom of the Arctic, the world's most famous ghost ship has flashed into view again to revive a story as strange as this crewless vessel itself.

For only a few minutes was this wraith-like vessel visible to a few Arctic observers before disappearing again into the mists, to continue cruising in uncharted, ice-locked seas around the North Pole, a voyage that can end only in ultimate destruction. Six times men have seen the ship, since the ice first swept her away from civilization in 1931.

How far the vessel has sailed, where it has been, no one can even guess, although the ice apparently carries its prisoner over a similar course each year—a premise borne out by the fact sure of a tenth victory over the Polar Pack; at least, until a September blizzard struck. Then, at midnight, like a great wall, the ice loomed dead ahead.

Frozen in a treacherous ice-field that might at any moment crush the ship's hull, Captain Cornwall, his three passengers and crew of 16 took to safer ice a few hundred yards from the ship. After wireless told the world of their plight, a plane flew from Nome to rescue the passengers and the crew settled down to a year's stay on the Pack.

Disappeared After Blizzard

Friendly Eskimos provided fresh reindeer meat, and with the plentiful stores aboard the Baychimo little hardship was anticipated. Then a two-day blizzard swept the little camp.

When the storm ended on September

The ghost ship, "Baychimo," locked in the arctic ice pack.

that the ghost has been sighted three times off Point Barrow, Alaska, at varying distances ranging from seven to 110 miles away.

Never before in the history of the North, seafaring men say, has a vessel survived more than two seasons in the crushing, grinding, shifting chaos of the Polar ice. Each time the ghost ship is seen the appearance is proclaimed as definitely the last. But the ghost sails on.

Story of the Ghost Ship

What is the story of this fantastic craft, that has successfully defied the elements for seven years?

This astonishingly vital ghost ship is the 1300-ton iron steamer, Baychimo, owned by the Hudson Bay Company, and for nine years the only link between the "outside" and the remote fur trading posts inside the Arctic Circle.

In July, 1931, the Baychimo sailed out of Vancouver, B. C., on her last voyage. Deep into the ice-choked western Arctic Sea she drove to visit eight Hudson Bay Company ports, discharge supplies and take on a million-dollar cargo of furs. Then with winter closing in, the race to Point Barrow and open water began.

Sailing along with a strong north-east gale astern the Baychimo seemed 26, the Baychimo and her million-dollar cargo had vanished. Far and wide over the ice the members of the crew searched, finding no trace of the steamer.

An Eskimo, hunting seals, discovered her fully 50 miles from the camp. Hoping to salvage some of his cargo, the captain unloaded all but $30,000 worth of the furs and transported them over the ice to Point Barrow. When a second salvage party returned to the site, the Baychimo had disappeared again.

Five months later Leslie Melvin, youthful adventurer, encountered the ship while on a 3000-mile trip from Herschel Island to Nome. In August, 1932, the Baychimo first came drifting off Point Barrow. Thirty Eskimos went aboard, were caught by a sudden storm and after a wild-ten-day ride in the grinding ice, barely escaped with their lives. A schooner captain sighted the derelict again off Point Barrow a year later.

A Captain Polson, of the American schooner, Trader, was the last to board the Baychimo. Encountering the ghost late in August, 1935, he found her as seaworthy as the day she had disappeared four years previously.

Then the Baychimo was really given up for lost—until she came sailing back into sight this year.

Worked Way Through School

By AVIS PLATTER

Route 1, Edgewood, Texas.
(Copyright, 1933, by the Southwest Magazine Co.)

E lived near Rising Star, Eastland county, Texas. Having finished the 10th grade in school I saw no prospects of going to an accredited school to get a high school education," said Miss Ecinue Rettalp.

"I had an aunt living in Desdemona, an oil town forty-five miles away. She brought her family of seven to visit us one week end. I was mighty glad. I had just pulled my eye-brows for the first time and mother was indignant about it. She was going to ask daddy to whip me when he came home. I always dreaded daddy's whippings. I saw the 'fray' postponed when aunt arrived."

"Auntie's girls and boys soon told me all their school news. Two of them were in high school and could not understand why I was not also there. My aunt persuaded mother and father to let me go home with her and to attend school. The term had been opened two and one-half months and, upon taking the examinations, I was admitted to the graduating class. I had to bring up all back work, do all the past notebook assignments and outside readings. I worked all day and half the night for a long time, finally got straightened out and had time to breathe, to look around me. The school building was very nice, the kind only an oil district could afford."

A Poor Little Fish

"It finally came home to me that I was different. I just didn't belong, and seemed a poor little fish out of water. My clothes were not like the others, my hair was long. The other girls all wore bobbed hair. My shoes were high-topped. The others girls all wore oxfords. My dresses were long, below my shoe tops. The girls of my class wore theirs barely below their knees. Girls and boys alike looked at me curiously. I was suddenly downcast and homesick, but I wanted to go to school so I stayed on. I could buy only scant school supplies, therefore I had no money for clothes. In desperation I asked permission to attend class periods only. I prepared my lessons at home or in a secluded corner of the superintendent's office."

"One evening I went down the street and asked a woman, who had been sending her washing out, to let me do it for her. She readily agreed. A few days later another lady asked me to wash for her. That was two washings a week at 75c each. It began to be noised around that I was working my way through school. Several jobs were then thrown my way at odd hours. I ironed for one family every Saturday morning and cleaned house for another every Saturday afternoon. One party heard I could tat. She asked me to tat a border for her table cloth. One job led to another.

ECINUE RETTALP
Eastland county.

Keeping Up With Class Work

Soon I was earning from $5 to $7 a week and keeping up all my class work. I started paying $4 a week for board. Above what I paid for board I saved to buy some clothes. I bought a pair of oxfords and felt more at ease with them on. I knew better than to cut my hair or shorten my old dresses.

"By the time I had saved enough to buy a couple of dresses, I was offered music lessons. I always wanted to play the violin, so I bought one and started paying it out by the week. Sometimes I had $1 to pay and sometimes $3."

"I didn't attend any of my class activities. If there were anything big that required class money I paid my part and then stayed home and practiced music, or did some of my school work. I didn't attend the class banquet, but paid my part of the banquet expenses."

Wins a $10 Prize

"During school there were two theme-writing contests. I entered the first one and won a $10 prize. I had begun to feel a little bit important. One of the boys in my class asked me to write a theme for him to enter in the second contest but I told him all my time was taken up. I guess he really didn't know that I had seen him thumb his nose at me earlier in the year. That was just one bad side of my nature turned uppermost."

"Graduation time approached. I was the only one in class who didn't buy a class ring. I ranked third in class work. It was such a relief when the class decided to rent caps and gowns for graduation. I attended the exercises and received my diploma, but lack of clothes and too much pride caused me to stay home during services at the church and when the class dance was held."

"I won a diploma but acquired an inferiority complex that has been hard to overcome. I sometimes wonder if I paid too dearly for my diploma?"

High Flying

Man can live four miles above ground for at least two days, a French air ministry experiment proves. In Paris, two men in oxygen suits spent 48 hours in a chamber where air conditions of 21,000-foot altitude were reproduced and came out alive and healthy.

Going that high without oxygen makes a man sluggish, confused, easily fatigued. And filling a sealed plane with oxygen is almost equally dangerous. Pressure inside is so much greater than that outside that the plane is liable to burst. When one pilot went to the height of 54,000 feet in a sealed plane, the cabin roof split over his head. He narrowly escaped death.

Long flights at high altitudes can affect even those pilots who use oxygen. They have nose bleeds, feel "stuffy," and may get boils.

Gettysburg

PROBABLY the last reunion of either the blue or the gray took place on Gettysburg, (Pennsylvania), battlefield in July. The average age of the men who attended the reunion was 94. Of the 3,500,000 men enlisted for the war between the States, 2,700,000 Federals and 800,000 Confederates, only 9,000 are alive. Many of these were too feeble to attend the reunion. Preparations were made to take care of approximately 5,000 of these old soldiers—their total expenses paid by the government—but less than 2,000 appeared to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, the greatest battle of the war. In the three day's fighting heavy casualties resulted on both sides—so heavy that neither side could claim a decisive victory, although Lee's men failed to dislodge the Federals from most of their strategic positions. After the battle Meade's men were so badly shattered he made no attempt to counter attack, and the Confederates retired in order south of the Potomac river.

Whatever the argument about the results of the Gettysburg battle, there can be no dispute about the valor of the men who fought it. Part of the casualty lists follow:

The Twenty-Sixth North Carolina went into battle with 800 men; came out with 86.

The Thirteenth North Carolina counted only 10 men out of 195.

Company C of the Eleventh North Carolina lost 32 of 37 men in Pickett's charge.

Out of Pickett's Virginia division, every field officer but one was killed; Armistead's brigade lost 1,191, including 643 missing; Garnett's brigade emerged with only 300 survivors out of 1,287.

On the Union side the story was equally appalling:

The Nineteenth Indiana lost 210 out of 288 men.

The First Minnesota saw 224 of its men fall on the first day alone.

The Twenty-Fifth Ohio had four commanders shot down in succession, lost 184 of 220 men.

The Twenty-Sixth Pennsylvania had a casualty list of 213 out of 365 engaged.

Pure Food and Drug Act

Thirty-two years ago Congress passed a pure food and drug act. A late act of Congress has brought this law "up to date" and reinforced it with stiffer penalties for violations.

The revised act prohibits the sale in interstate commerce of injurious cosmetics and forbids the distribution of new drugs before they have been officially tested—a provision probably suggested by the death last year of ten persons from sulfanilimide.

Hereafter both foods and drugs sold in packages must have informative labeling. The old laws against deception and fraud have been enlarged and strengthened. The new law will also give legal force to definitions and standards of food products, whereas the old law was only advisory in this respect.

Worthless products may be removed from market without the necessity of government proving a false intent.

The new law is more inclusive. Practically all drugs and therapeutic devices, such as electric belts, etc., are brought under its provisions.

The intent and purpose of the law is to protect the people from injurious drugs and food products.

Oklahoma Shows the Way

Oklahoma has shown a new approach to the problem of tax collection. Some citizens of that State, who pay their taxes as they fall due, took a test case to the Supreme Court which decided that the citizens could compel county officials to collect delinquent taxes.

The Court said: "The conscientious citizen who pays his taxes promptly and annually is penalized by the failure of county officials to enforce the sale and resale laws. The prime requisite of taxation is equality. There can be no equality if one taxpayer must bear general fund obligations one year and sinking fund obligations for the same debt the next year, a condition brought about by the failure to collect taxes from all. The payment of a tax is not a voluntary, but a compulsory duty."

What Is Nazism?

An Associated Press dispatch, by Louis P. Lochner, published in the Dallas News, has a clarifying statement of the purposes, principles, and concepts of Nazism in Germany. According to Mr. Lochner some of the things that Nazism means are as follows:

Complete renunciation of the right of private property and of personal freedom. Owners of capital, land and forests in Germany have been forced to place them at the service of the State. Private property in banking, shipping and the heavy industries has ceased to exist. Universal labor service has become compulsory, as is military service.

Free speech, free press, free public assembly are things of the past.

All individualism has been subordinated to the State.

The frontiers have been closed.

Money may not be taken out of Germany without the permission of the government.

Marrying the Million-Dollar Girl

In New York City an Episcopal rector refused to perform the marriage ceremony for a young man who works for a living and a girl who inherits a million dollars in her own right. In another city in New York State a millionaire withheld his consent for the marriage of his daughter to a young man having a job paying $21 a week because he was poor. But the daughter, a million-dollar girl, married the young man, although she knew it meant skimping and doing the cooking and washing.

If there is any valid objection to either of these young men, the papers did not mention it; they seem to be of good character, honest and industrious, just the kind of young man in whom America may take pride.

These young men are good average American citizens, infinitely superior to the average run of dukes and counts on whom rich American parents bestow their daughters. We never hear of preachers refusing to perform the ceremony for marrying our heiresses to counts, however worthless they may be. But our Consuelo Vanderbilts, Anna Goulds and Barbara Huttons might all testify that foreign dukes and counts are not worth the price. Doubtless everyone of them would have been happier if she had married an American, whether rich or poor, of good character, intelligence and industrious habits.

Hay Fever

The doctors tell us that 13,000,000 people in the United States are subject annually to hay fever. That is, one in ten is liable to have the malady.

If you have hay fever you feel terribly; your eyes, nose and throat are watery; light is painful; your throat is sore; you sneeze and are apt to get so irritable from loss of vitality and sleep that friends can hardly bear with you.

Dr. C. E. Reyner, in the Ford News, says that hay fever was first recognized in England in 1819; it then went by the name of summer catarrh. Vegetation in general and hay in particular were known to be the causes, but it was as late as 1873 before physicians finally concluded that pollen is the main cause.

Pollen from plants that have both male and female flowers is carried from the male flower to the female. If the flower is bright-colored, like the rose and golden-rod, this transfer of pollen is usually made by insects. In the case of plants having inconspicuous flowers, like all grasses, many trees and herbs, the pollen is carried from flower to flower by air currents, and it is the pollen from these plants that give us hay fever by irritating the mucous membrane of the eyes, nose and throat.

Some persons are sensitive to many varieties of pollen; others to a few. Doctors have advised tests that will determine the kinds of pollen to which hay fever victims are hypersensitive and they treat the disease, sometimes successfully, by hypodermic injections of the proper pollen extract.

More people are sensitive to the pollen from rag-weed than any other plant. As it blooms in the late summer and fall, it is then that the great majority of hay fever cases occur.

Big Dams

It is the day of big things. A year or two ago we were thinking of big bridges like that across Oakland Bay at San Francisco, more than eight miles long, built at a cost of $75,000,000. Since the Boulder Dam and TVA projects were begun, several years ago, we have been thinking of big dams. But there is no dam on the Tennessee river so large as that which impounds the waters of the Columbia river at Coulee, Washington. It will cost $62,000,000, will be 142 feet high (ultimately 300 feet) planned to produce 1,000,000 horse power.

The people of Texas are amazed at the great dams across the Colorado river above Austin, and the one recently begun across the Brazos in Palo Pinto county. But the biggest dam for this part of the country is the one projected across Red river, five miles northwest of Denison. It would be 190 feet high, 15,350 feet long (nearly three miles), and 32 feet wide at the top, sufficiently for a two-lane highway. The area of land covered at flood stage would be 312 square miles, or more than 198,000 acres. The waters of both the Red and the Wichita rivers would be impounded. The reservoir, it is estimated, could store 5,900,000-acre feet of water at flood stage elevation.

Big dams eventually may be the means of solving flood control, of creating all the hydro-electric power we shall need, of greatly reducing erosion and providing vast storage of water for irrigation.

Silting Up of Our Lakes

Dr. H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service of the United States Department of Agriculture, spoke recently on the silting up of reservoirs because of soil erosion.

He quotes authorities who have studied the disastrous effects of silting. One authority said that Lake Worth in 13 years had silted one-third of its original water storage capacity, and that it would be completely filled with mud by 1959.

Other lakes, notably Lakes Dallas and White Rock, reveal the same condition.

In Oklahoma damage from soil erosion, says Dr. Bennett, is appalling. In this relatively new State 13,000,000 of the 16,000,000 acres under cultivation are already suffering seriously from erosion. Twenty-five States now have some kind of conservation laws, and it may help if these laws are strictly enforced.

The problem of silting up of lakes is closely allied with that of soil erosion. It is folly for a city, State or the nation to construct great dams for flood control, or for a water supply, unless some way can be found by which soil erosion may be stopped. Within comparatively few years most lakes will be full of mud, muck and sand, and our last condition will be worse than our first.

So far as we know the only way to keep soil from running off into streams to silt up lakes is for all landholders to see to it that not a drop of muddy water runs off their lands. We hope there will be a common, persistent, concerted effort to this end on the part of landholders.

Foresight and Wisdom

During the grain harvest good news came from Enid, Oklahoma. Many farmers in the vicinity of that city stored their binders twelve years ago and began harvesting with combines. But this year something happened that rendered the combines useless. It began raining; a shower would come every two or three days.

The heavy combines bogged in the mud. Then the farmers oiled up their old binders and cut and shocked their small grain in the old way, thus averting an almost total grain loss.

We congratulate the wheat raisers of Oklahoma for not scrapping and for taking good care of their combines. It showed foresight and wisdom.

Better High Schools

There are two agencies for accrediting high schools—the State Department of Education and a regional agency. In Oklahoma and Arkansas this regional agency is the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools; in Texas and other Southern States it is the Southern Association.

Both of these agencies have certain standards that must be met if a high school is to be placed or retained on the list of accredited schools. These standards concern teachers and librarians and their qualifications, school buildings, laboratories, libraries, length of recitation periods and of the school year, minimum salaries that may be paid to teachers, and the amount of work that is required of the teacher, commonly designated as the "teacher loads."

Mr. J. W. O'Banion, Head Supervisor of High Schools for the State Department of Education, reports some advances in Texas schools for the past year that are greatly gratifying. While a few schools have been dropped from the State list of accredited schools on account of inability to comply with standards, 74 high schools have been added. The number of schools now requiring teachers to have college degrees is 193.

Schools to the number of 918 had longer terms in 1937-1938 than during the previous year. He reported that 118 counties now have county libraries—probably a greater proportion than has any other State in the South.

The value of accrediting agencies is due largely to the fact that our schools try to raise their standards so as to be eligible for a place on the lists, and do their utmost to retain the honor, once they have secured it, by maintaining standards of excellence as required.

It is a matter of pride to the citizens of any community to know that their high school, as judged by the ablest authorities, is considered 'worthy' to rank with the best. One real advantage, closely concerning the pupils, is that graduates of accredited schools may enter college without examination, a privilege not shared by other schools.

Municipal Gold Mine

There's no telling where gold will turn up next. The town of Redding, Calif., for instance, already owns and operates a municipal gold mine, and made over $1,000 from it last year. Near San Francisco miners, sluicing beach sand, get from $2 to $20 a day.

Even the Bering Sea is being forced to yield its gold. One miner took $200,000 from it near Nome, Alaska. He cut holes in the winter ice, plunged down buckets and scraped the ore-bearing mud from the sea's floor.

Grass Root Reveries

By JOE GANDY

Winnaboo, Texas.

(Copyright, 1938, by the Southwest Magazine Co.)

GEOLOGISTS have been studying earth formations in Northeast Texas. Geologists claim the good earth is 100,000,000 years old. Don't know how they figure the age of the earth and it doesn't matter much, for a few million years one way or the other means nothing in our young lives. Must have been great to live on the earth during cave-men's days. No clothes to buy; no groceries to buy; no house rent to pay; no taxes; no old debts; no primaries.

The usual number of drownings are reported at this time of year. I once talked to two men who came near drowning. Both men told me, while struggling in the water, that everything in their lives passed before them. Hope I'll never come near drowning, for there are things in my life I wouldn't want to pass before me. But if ever I die by accident, prefer drowning to a pesky flivver running over me.

It was reported some months ago that Germans were making food out of sawdust. Now comes the report that they are making cloth out of milk. Next thing we know a smart German will make gold out of scrap iron—then Uncle Sam's 12,000,000,000 (billion) dollars of gold, buried in a vault in Kentucky, will have to compete with junk prices.

I read the advice of a beauty expert in the paper, and among other things she said that the "cooler one is this hot weather the more beautiful one is." For years I've needed a beautifier to tone down my ugliness, so I made up my mind to try the beauty expert's advice. Without saying a word to any one about my plans—not even wife—I sat serenely on the shady side of the porch two days, fanning myself with a palm leaf fan, and trying my best to keep cool. Wife never saw me act this way before and it puzzled her. Finally she said: "Joe, if you are ailin' go see a doctor; if you ain't ailin' get up from there and go to work!"

Over in Arkansas they had a rattlesnake race—snakes racing against snakes. In my time I've seen several rattlesnake races, but always it was the snake racing the man, not the man racing the snake. I remember seeing one particular snake race that was funny. It was a black coachwhip racing after an old man who was an infidel. Hittin' it up pretty fast at every jump, the old man yelled:

"Lord, help me! Lord, help me! But if you won't help me, don't help the snake!"

This mud-slingin' by candidates in the first primary carried me back to childhood days when we kids dived to the bottom of the old swimmin' hole and came up with handfuls of mud which we threw at each other. Politics needs a bath, a scrub, and a deodorant.

With a fiscal year deficit of approximately four billion dollars, government spending will put us in the red at the rate of seven thousand, five hundred dollars a minute during the next twelve months, say Treasury officials. It's well to know we are now down to a minute basis on spending. Billions in the red, year after year, got to where it failed to impress the average man. But over seven thousand dollars a minute is simple arithmetic that everybody can understand. Even Congress, when it meets in January, will understand that Uncle Sam owes a few paltry dollars.

This is the time of year when revival meetings are being held all over the country, and rightly so, because revival work in the church is the greatest force for good. Which reminds me of 'one good old sister at a revival recently. In the middle of a stirring sermon she jumped up excitedly and started out. A friend asked her where she was going? She said: "I forgot to take that pot of blackeyed peas off the stove. Pray for me that they don't bile over or burn up."

Some city folks have moved to farms with no experience in farming. We farmers usually welcome them and try, when asked, to help them with their farm problems. Recently I heard this one: A city-bred man bought a farm and moved on it. Through mistake he was sold egg-mash for dairy feed. While the cow was being milked she mooed, and the moo sounded much like a hen cackling.

A father complained to an editor that he did not mention the activities of his son and daughter in the society columns of his paper. He said that was the only way he could keep up with where they were going and what they were doing. Editors should watch after other people's children better than that.

I have a neighbor farmer who is a sort of philosopher. The other day he said: "Joe, almost everybody is taking a vacation these days 'cept the farmer and the devil. The farmer needs a vacation but can't afford to take it; the devil can afford to take it but don't need it—his work is easy and he never gets tired."

Politics in Texas is mixing into everything these days. First it mixed with dogwood blossoms; now it's mixed with mountain music. But an inventor over in Kentucky got mixed with politics in a practical way. He invented a new deep well pump and advertised it as the "New Deal Pump" that needs no priming.

BRIEF TEXAS NEWS---from Over the State

2,119 SNAKES KILLED

Total bounties for dead rattlesnakes in Bell county paid at the county clerk's office, Belton, had reached a total of 2,119 June 15.

PARALYZED BY SPIDER BITE

A black widow spider's bite paralyzed the lower body of County Judge Carroll Peace, of Falls county, while he was on a fishing trip to Bayside, Refugio county.

KISS BURGLAR

A burglar who steals nothing but kisses is being sought by Fort Worth police. He broke into two Fort Worth houses and stole kisses—one from Marguerite Smith, age 18, and one from Nana Ruth Bedwell, age 16. No valuables were missing at either home.

FISH HATCHERY AT BUCHANAN DAM

Buchanan Dam Lake, north of Austin, promises to be a fisherman's paradise when the $35,000 government fish hatchery is completed near the lake. The 30-acre hatchery's capacity is 2,500,000 fingerling fish annually.

KILLS BEAR WITH .22 CALIBRE RIFLE

Floyd Thompson, while squirrel hunting near Bay City, (Matagorda county), killed a 300-pound female black bear with a .22 calibre automatic rifle. One bullet struck the bear in the throat and another bullet struck her in the heart.

CCC BOYS EAT PLENTY

Boys in the Texas Civilian Conservation Corps are not going hungry, for the food bill during the current fiscal year, according to CCC headquarters officials, will cost the government $1,850,000. The menu specifies 39 different food items.

SWEDES CELEBRATE

Texans of Swedish descent celebrated the 100th anniversary of Swedish settlement in Texas July 9 and 10 at Palm Valley, near Round Rock, (Williamson county). Swen Swenson is said to have been the first Swede to land in Texas, in 1828, from a wrecked ship that storm waves tossed on Galveston island.

WED ON MOTORCYCLES

Couples have married seated in trailers and in automobiles, but what is believed to be the first couple to marry seated on motorcycles took place in the center of Main Street, at La Feria, (Cameron county), June 27. The marital parties were Miss Dorothy Nobbett, of La Feria, and Jack Fleming, of Santa Rosa, (Cameron county).

OLDEST STILL DISCOVERED

The oldest still in America has been found by Smithsonian Institution archeologists in the Big Bend country of West Texas. Frank Settler, Smithsonian official, came upon the still 45 miles north of Dryden, (Terrell county), while trying to trace the civilization of Indian cliff-dwellers. Settler believes the still was used by prehistoric Indians in brewing a potent alcoholic drink from the desert sotol plant.

SURVIVED 3,000 VOLTS OF ELECTRICITY

Madisonville Meteor: "C. M. Hereford, of Beaumont, former Madisonville resident, was alive this week despite a charge of 3,300 volts of electricity which struck him.

"Mr. Hereford received the tremendous shock while rolling up a section of 'dead' wire. By some manner, inexplicable, the wire became charged, sending part of the voltage through Mr. Hereford's body.

"The charge was so great that two fingers on both hands were literally burned off. The electricity went entirely through his body, coming out at the toe on one foot and the heel on the other foot.

"Mr. Hereford's life was believed saved because one end of the wire was stuck in the ground, enabling part of the load to be carried off. The charge tore a hole in the ground."

ASSETS OF TEXAS RAILROADS

The State Tax Board has fixed valuation of intangible assets of Texas railroads for taxing purposes this year at approximately $45,000,000.

PERFECT TRAFFIC SAFETY RECORDS

Seven of Texas' 254 counties had perfect traffic safety records for the first five months of the year, State police report. The seven without a traffic death or even a serious injury were Armstrong, Hemphill, Jim Hogg, Lavaca, Loving, Martin and Real.

MADE IN TEXAS—SOLD ALL OVER WORLD

Dallas Times-Herald: "Draperies made in an Itasca, (Hill county), cotton mill are being sold all over the world, including all States in the United States and 10 foreign countries. So successful is the venture that the mill's mail increase has raised the Itasca postoffice from third to second class."

IMPORTS SHOW INCREASE

Texas imports showed increases for the first five months of 1938, although foreign demand for United States merchandise declined in May. Value of exports through all Texas ports in 1937 was $415,697,000. Grain exports through Galveston port from July 1, 1937, to May, 1938, were 41,769,805 bushels.

SKULL TURNS BULLET

Dallas Times-Herald: "Ernest McClelland, 37-year-old negro, of Dallas, is still alive because his skull withstood the impact of a .38 caliber pistol bullet. Ernest went down and bled freely when shot by another negro, but when the ambulance arrived at Parkland Hospital with him doctors examined the wound and announced the thick bone structure of his skull had turned the bullet and that he had suffered only a head injury of minor proportions. After treatment he was released to resume his nineteenth observance."

FEDERAL TAX COLLECTIONS INCREASE

Federal internal revenue collections in Texas amounted to $138,965,751 in corporation, individual, excess profits, payroll and miscellaneous taxes during the 1938 fiscal year which ended at midnight June 30. Taxes in the 1937 fiscal year in the State amounted to $101,528,988.

DEPTH OF TEXAS OIL WELLS

A survey recently completed by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association shows that Texas oil is produced from wells having an average depth of 4,000 feet, with a maximum producing depth of 10,600 feet. Prior to 1920, the average depth of producing oil wells in Texas was only 1,200 feet, with a maximum producing depth of 2,900 feet. The deepest producing wells in Texas today are located in Brazoria county, along the Gulf Coast, where oil is being produced from a depth of 10,600 feet.

SIX-MAN FOOTBALL

More than 200 high school principals and coaches, attending a meeting at East Texas State Teachers' College, Commerce, decided that six-man football will be introduced in East Texas Class D high schools this fall.

HONEY BEES SWARM IN HOME

When Mrs. George Webb, of Odessa, returned to her home recently, she found that a swarm of honey bees had "moved in" and settled down to the gathering of nectar and the making of honey-comb. At a loss what to do, she called the county agent who said if the owner of the bees could not be found they would have to be killed by feeding them a mixture of syrup and arsenic.

2,400-YEAR-OLD GREEK VASE

San Antonio Express: "A Grecian ear vase, believed to be 2,400 years old, was donated to the Witte Museum, San Antonio, by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cafedjidakis of Athens, Greece.

"Such vases as the one donated were carried by the Grecian people of the fifth century B. C. They would cry as often as they could in the vase, believing that the more a person cried during life the fewer tears would be shed in the future life," according to Mrs. Ellen S. Quillin, director of the museum."

GETTYSBURG REUNION BADGE

The badge sent to Texas Confederates "by the United States on the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg," showed an eagle holding the "bars," on a Confederate flag, in one claw and the Union, or Yankee "stars and bars," on the other flag. Both badges, for the veteran and his attendant, were of bronze, inscribed with the names of the recipients.

SAM HOUSTON'S FAMOUS CANE

The death of James R. Ivion, retired merchant of Henderson, revived comment of the famous cane given to him by General Sam Houston when he was 5 years old. This cane played an important part in the life of Houston, says the Port Arthur News. It was the cane he held while his portrait was painted and the cane he used on a Senator in Washington who tried to besmirch his character.

SKULL OF PREHISTORIC DOG

The complete skull of a prehistoric dog, known by anthropologists as the "bear dog," was found by WPA excavating workers in Donley county. Professor C. Stuart Johnson, of West Texas State College, pronounced the skull, with its lower jaw and teeth intact, as a fine specimen. Johnson explained that the bear dog, as large as the Alaskan brown bear, and a ferocious fighter, inhabited this section more than 1,000,000 years ago.

The above picture of an old stage coach inn, which played such an important role in Texas less than a century ago, has all but disappeared from Texas. Only a few of the rambling old structures have escaped the hand of time and progress. Perhaps the most interesting is old Fanthorpe Inn, on the outskirts of Anderson, Grimes county. Here, during the days of the Republic, political and military leaders found shelter. Sam Houston was a guest at this inn many times, as were other celebrities of that period. Built for a home by an Englishman by the name of Fanthorpe, the structure was converted into an inn after the new stage route had been opened. The name of the town originally was Fanthorpe but when Kenneth Anderson, vice-president of the Texas Republic, was stricken and died in the old inn, the name was changed to Anderson as a tribute to this brilliant and popular statesman.—Copyrighted by Texas View Co.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

Wichita Falls Times: "Fritz Theis, farmer living two miles south of Tom Ball, (Harris county), astonished his friends by exhibiting a two-year-old turkey gobbler which hatches eggs. But his neighbor, Park Mooney, has a painted lawn chair which has taken roots and sprouted foliage while setting in his yard."

MOST PROFITABLE BRANCH LINE RAILROAD

The most profitable short line railroad in America to-day is believed to be the 16-mile branch line from Henderson to Overton, Texas. Built in 1877 as the H. & O., by General Web Flanagan, it is now a part of the Missouri Pacific lines and goes through the heart of the giant East Texas oil pool with its 25,000 producing oil wells. As far back as 1877, the first six months operation of this railroad showed a net profit of $2,800,000. What its profits have been since oil was discovered along its right-of-way is a matter of speculation. Probably its profits, for any like six-month period, have exceeded the first six months of 1877.

ROOFED HOUSE WITH AUTO LICENSE PLATES

Narciso Garza and his son, of Brownsville, roofed their home recently with 952 automobile license plates. Garza bought the unused, left over 1933-34 plates from the county for $3. The roof never leaks, says Garza.

PREDICTS GLASS ROAD SURFACES

Motorists in a few years will travel over highways made out of glass, Dr. John F. Caton, Detroit, director of research engineering for the Chrysler corporation, told delegates to the Texas Motor Association Convention, held in Dallas, July 8. "Science promises many wonders for the near future. Soon we'll have glass springs for our beds, glass radio sets, glass shingles for our houses, glass razor blades and glass road surfaces," said Mr. Caton.

DAN BELL'S DAY

Waco News-Tribune: "Nobody in Pleasant Valley, (Dallas county), has any doubt when Thursday comes—it is Dan Bell's day to go to town. For 36 years this 71-year-old blacksmith has driven the same hack, a rebuilt spring wagon, to Dallas on Thursday. Two horses have served him, one from 1902 until 1928. Bell's present horse has done duty since 1928. He has missed his weekly trip only once. One day last winter the ice was so slick his horse could not keep its footing."

LONDON CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL BUILDING COMPLETED

The New London, (Rusk county), Consolidated School building was officially accepted by the Board of Education at a brief ceremony July 6. Characterized as accident-proof, the new building cost $321,000, exclusive of equipment. Construction was started last September.

This building, larger and costlier than the previous building, has an overall dimension of 272x170 feet, is two stories high and includes an auditorium, machine shops, domestic science rooms, laboratories and spacious library rooms.

Accumulated gas, ignited by a spark from a sanding machine in the school shop, was believed to have caused the explosion which, on March 18, 1937, destroyed the old building and took nearly 300 lives. The design of the new building, according to the architect, include all known safety devices. Steam for heating is generated in a brick plant 350 feet from the school building and piped into rooms through an attic. There are no steam, or gas pipes under the building.

MIGHTY GOOD WATCH

McKinney Courier-Gazette: "Fifteen years ago C. A. Wiser, farmer, living northwest of Plano, lost a gold open-face watch while harvesting. Last week while combing his grain crop the watch was found and, when wound up, started running. The crystal was not broken. Except for a slight dent on the back, the watch appeared none the worse off by having lain in the earth for fifteen years. The ground where it was found has been cultivated each year since the watch was lost."

HOME, SWEET HOME

Mrs. Margaret Ann Bailey, of El Paso, who will be 104 years old in October, was presented a home by her 80-year-old son, Frank Hartley. "I've wanted a home of my own since my children were grown," Mrs. Bailey said. "And now that dream has come true. The heavenly Father is good to me." She came to Texas from Tennessee in 1844 in a covered wagon. During the Civil War she ran the farm, did her own carding and spinning. She is a member of the First Baptist Church.

DOG FOLLOWS FAMILY 600 MILES

Walter Clack moved his family from Odessa, (Ector county), to Genoa, (Harris county), leaving behind his dog, "snowball," a 4-year-old Spitz. But the dog followed afoot and recently showed up at the Clack home in Genoa, wagging its tail, but footsore and haggard after a 600-mile hike from Odessa.

EATS 'EM ALIVE

San Antonio Light: "Visitors at the Witte Museum Reptile Garden, June 24, got something extra for their money. They saw cannibal Jerry, a coachwhip snake, battle a rattlesnake to the death—with Jerry the victor. The rattlesnake battled Jerry for half an hour. The poisonous venom of the rattlesnake fangs found Jerry's flesh, but to no avail—he swallowed his enemy portion by portion until there was nothing left but the rattlesnake's head."

CHAMPION GRANDMOTHER

Mrs. Mary Jane Skinner, of Gonzales, (Gonzales county), pioneer Texas woman, continues the unchallenged "champion grandmother" of the United States, with a total of 283 descendants. She has 62 grandchildren, 161 great-grandchildren and 38 great-great-grandchildren. She was born in Tennessee April 24, 1829 and married when 14. She has lived in Gonzales county 78 years.

TEXAS PRISON POPULATION INCREASES

The latest report from the Texas prison system shows 6,875 inmates, an increase of 7 per cent since January, 1938. Ten years ago the prison had approximately 4,000 inmates.

Bruce W. Bryant, chairman of the State Pardon Board, said: "Persons generally seem indifferent to crime as long as it doesn't affect them. Until this condition is ended, the number of prisoners will continue to grow out of proportion to the increase in the State's population. We're turning out everyone we think safely can be returned to society after he has served a sufficient portion of his sentence to be eligible for clemency. However, we try to remember at all times that one object of punishment is the suppression of crime."

JOHN AND BILL BOUND FOR GETTYSBURG

Beaumont Enterprise: "John Sims, age 94, from Kountze, (Hardin county), and Bill Oakley, age 92, from Woodville, (Tyler county), were bound for the Gettysburg battlefield June 27, 1938. Two old gallants they were—headed for the last roundup. An air-conditioned train is carrying them back to the past—the gloriously futile, crimsoned past of 1861-65, when John Sims and William Oakley, two young eager boys, wore the gray and carried in their hearts a burning passion for the cause. "Where you'll goin', somebody at the railroad station asked the two excited old men. It was pretty obvious they were outward bound on a most important journey.

"Bill's little hard of hearing, so John piped up with: 'To Gettysburg, by gum, if the Lord's willin' and the creeks don't rise!'"

STATE TO SPEND $3,000,000 FOR SUPPLIES

The State of Texas is in the market for approximately $3,000,000 worth of supplies including everything from groceries, dry goods and lipsticks to dynamite, says the San Antonio News. The Board of Control will open nearly 30 bids on more than 1,000 items and an army of clerks will consume more than six weeks tabulating them preparatory to awards for purchases of various governmental departments, eleemosynary and educational institutions, in the fiscal year starting September 1. Among unusual items one would never suspect a State government of buying are some $5,000 worth of face powder, rouge and hair-dressing equipment for beauty shops maintained in insane asylums. Psychiatrists have found these excellent for rebuilding the morale of broken minds and patients receive the beauty treatments free.

"Be sure, Mary, before buying the plums, to pinch one or two, just to see that they are ripe."
In a little while the girl returned with flushed face and a triumphant look in her eyes. Handing the teacher the bag of plums, she placed the dime on the desk, and exclaimed:
"I pinched one or two, as you told me, and when the man wasn't looking I pinched a bagful."

Only Too True

There was a grocer named March. One day a commercial traveler came into his store and said:
"March, on the first of April the price of tea is going up."
"I'm sorry to hear that," replied March.
A few days later a wholesale salesman came in and said:
"March, on the first of April the price of sugar is going up."
"I'm sorry to hear that," said March.
Later on the landlord came in and said:
"March, on the first of April I must put the rent up."
"I'm sorry to hear that," said March. Then he put up a sign in his window. It read:
THE FIRST OF APRIL WILL BE THE END OF MARCH.

Didn't Bother About Details

The army general sent for his engineer—an old-fashioned, capable road builder.
"Jim," he asked, "how long will it take to throw a bridge across this river?"
"Three days," the engineer said, after running his fingers through his hair.
"Good," said the general. "Have the draftsman make the drawings right away."
Three days later the general sent for the engineer, hardly hoping the bridge could be done so soon.
"How's the bridge?" he asked.
"Bridge is made," was the reply, "and you can march your men across it if you don't want to wait for them drawings. They ain't done yet."

THE GLORIOUS SUNRISE

I arose early, that I might behold the glory of morning among the mountains and over the plains. The eastern sky was already over-spread, as with a thin silvery veil, with the least trace of amber and gold among its threads; while one solitary star, like a great opal, hung suspended in the translucent atmosphere, its rich heart glowed with red and yellow flame. As dawn brightened in the east, and rose-tints deepened along the sky, and the atmosphere grew tremulous as the lance-like beams began to pierce it, I seemed to hear the voice which in the beginning said, "Let there be light!" He who has never knelt at the base of overhanging mountains; who has never fallen asleep with no roof above him but the heavens, and no protection from the dangers which lurk amid the darkness of night save the watchful care of God—can little realize the significance of those two words—Adoration and Faith.—W. H. Murray.

VOLCANO WARNINGS

Mayon Volcano, in the Philippines, quiet for ten years, is once more spouting smoke and flame, rumbling with slight earthquakes.
Such slight earthquakes, accompanied by smoke and flames, are the fair warning a volcano gives before it strikes. But humans ignore these broad hints, stick around until a catastrophe results.
Italy's Mount Vesuvius, for instance, had been dormant for centuries, then gave a 16-year warning through continued earthquakes. Before its big eruption, in 79 A. D., it held a three-day preview. Yet, instead of fleeing, many Romans hid in their cellars and were buried alive.
The same sort of thing happened on the island of Martinique in 1902 when Mount Pelee blew up. As the volcano began to fume, its human neighbors made sight-seeing trips to its crater instead of evacuating. Sixteen days later, a blast of deadly gas from the volcano wiped out the whole city of St. Pierre, killing thousands of people.

RAILS CARRY 85% OF THE MAIL

Today, the railroads carry approximately 85 per cent of all the mail transported in the United States. Their miles of road now total 149,599, or enough to encircle the world nearly eight times. Last year the revenue paid them for transporting Uncle Sam's mail totaled $97,827,479.32. They are constantly bettering their speed and efficiency records.

The part they have played in "getting the mail through," something of the distance the service has traveled in the past century, possibly can best be seen through an examination of typical dates along the way. For instance:

Before 1836—Contracts directed that when mail was carried on horseback or a vehicle other than a stage "it shall be covered securely with an oilcloth or bearskin against rain or snow, under a penalty of $20 for each time the mail is wet."

By 1845—There were 3,900 miles of railroad upon which the mail was carried.

In 1860—The first night mail was carried. An experiment was made for three months between New York and Boston, making it possible for letters leaving Washington in the morning to arrive in Boston within 23 hours.

Notable among the improvements made by railroads during their century of mail handling is the factor of speed. For instance, in 1870, the time mail was in transit from Washington, D. C., to San Francisco, a distance of 3,035 miles, was 161 hours. This was reduced to 109 hours in 1900 and to 80 hours in 1933. Today the journey is made in 70 hours.

LEADERSHIP

The leader for the time being, whoever he may be, is but an instrument, to be used until broken and then to be cast aside; and if he is worth his salt he will care no more when he is broken than a soldier cares when he is sent where his life is forfeited in order that the victory may be won. In the long fight for righteousness the watchword for all of us, is spend and be spent. It is a little matter whether any one man fails or succeeds; but the cause shall not fail, for it is the cause of mankind. We, here in America, hold in our hands the hope of the world, the fate of the coming years; and shame and disgrace will be ours if in our eyes the light of high resolve is dimmed, if we trail in the dust the golden hopes of men. If on this new continent we merely build another country of great but unjustly divided material prosperity, we shall have done nothing; and we shall do as little if we merely set the greed of envy against the greed of arrogance, and thereby destroy the material well-being of all of us.—Theodore Roosevelt.

POULTRY NEWS Culling Dirty Eggs

Cooling Methods for Eggs

Investigations at the Oklahoma A. & M. College by the Department of Poultry Husbandry have revealed that more number one eggs are produced by the refrigerator than by any other cooling method. A wet burlap cooler saves five times as many eggs from going below number ones as an open room, but the burlap cooler produced mold spots five times as fast as the eggs in the open room. The eggs in the burlap cooler lost weight less rapidly than in the mechanical refrigerator, but all other conditions were better in the mechanically cooled and insulated box.
It was found that infertile eggs will retain their original quality to a high degree even at a temperature above 68 degrees. If wet burlap coolers are used on farms, advise the Oklahoma investigators, the eggs should not be stored in them more than a week or 10 days. It proved the most satisfactory method of storing eggs of a number of ways compared with mechanical refrigeration.

Culling

Non-laying birds eat, and the quicker they are sold, the lower the feed bills and the greater the profits. Furthermore, in the case of paralysis and associated troubles including blindness, the birds are still in good flesh and saleable in the early stages, and if culled and sold at this stage, have a salvage value, whereas if left in the flock, are ultimately a total loss.

Most people think of culling as going over the birds once in the summer and letting it go at that. However, it should be done every couple of weeks during the summer and early fall. The point of culling is to get rid of the non-producers as soon as they cease production in order to save the feed they would eat if kept. Ordinarily, starting in June, some birds go out of production, and through the summer and fall, more and more stop producing, until late in the fall and winter, very few old hens are laying, except those few that molt and lay at the same time as those on which lights are used.

The whole basis of summer culling is that the early molters, or those that stop producing the earliest, are the poorest producers, and should be sold because they do not, with few exceptions, lay again until spring.

Sanitary Management

Sanitary management, says the University of Illinois, is the most effective weapon against intestinal parasites. On heavily infested farms these parasites may never be completely exterminated, but clean houses, clean ranges, pure water and clean, properly balanced rations are essential in preventing their spread.

Worm remedies do not take the place of sanitary management. While they may expel part of the worms, if the treated fowls are allowed access to infested quarters re-infestation promptly follows.

Dirty Eggs

The poultry industry suffers annually a loss of several million dollars because dirty eggs are marketed as such or because they are improperly cleaned.

Under average farm conditions about 25% of the eggs produced are dirty or slightly dirty. The disposal of dirty eggs has been a serious problem for the producer, the packer, the wholesale receiver, and the retailer. The producer has used different methods for cleaning the dirty eggs with various degrees of success.

The following quotations on Chicago egg prices were printed in the Chicago Tribune, November 25, 1937:

Fresh Eggs
Extra firsts	26 cents
Fresh firsts	25 cents
Current receipts	23 cents
Dirty	19 cents
Checks	17 cents

These quotations indicate quite clearly that because the outside of the shell of eggs is dirty, even though the interior quality may be excellent, the eggs sell for several cents less per dozen than do clean eggs.

TEXAS FARM NEWS REPORTS

J. H. Gable, of Dawson, (Navarro county), has produced a radish on his farm which measures 16 1/2 inches in length and 15 inches in circumference.

Harvesting of broom corn has started in Frio county, but the acreage is not as large as in previous years. The quality is reported to be better, however.

Muriel Williams, vocational agriculture boy of Joaquin, (Shelby county), has a litter of 18 pigs farrowed by his registered Duroc-Jersey sow, which is believed to be a record in that county.

Prospects look good for a bumper crop of pears in the orchard of Fred L. Cone, near Sunset, (Montague county). Although the pears will not ripen until early fall, the fruit now measures from 4 to 5 inches in circumference.

The oldest pioneer saddle shop in the entire State of Texas, according to reports, is still doing business. It is the firm of D. Heye, Inc., located at 217 North St. Mary's Street, San Antonio, (Bexar county), which was founded in 1866.

Winesap apples, a rarity in Williamson county, are being grown by Herman Kruse, of Turkey Creek, northeast of Taylor. Several trees are bearing rich, red and deliciously flavored apples each year, it is reported.

Farmer Tom Kennady, of Lelia Lake, (Donley county), while plowing recently turned back the soil to reveal a 17-jewel watch which he lost in a cotton field in 1930. When picked up and wound, the watch ran and is keeping perfect time—unhurt by 8 years of flood and dust.

The condition of Texas ranges July 1 was 85 per cent normal, an increase of 8 points above the same date a year ago, the Austin office of the U. S. Bureau of Agriculture Economics has announced. The condition of cattle continued above average and was 86 per cent of normal. Sheep were 84 per cent of normal.

Contract for purchasing the famous Goodnight ranch (Armstrong county), comprising 11,500 acres of land and 170 buffalo, has been signed by Mrs. Mattie Hedgecock, Amarillo. Mrs. Hedgecock, a daughter of the late J. A. Whittenburg, Hutchinson county pioneer, is buying the ranch from the Great Southern Life Insurance Company.

Having her right thumb broken when kicked by a setting hen, was the painful experience of Mrs. Alfred Baron, of Kerrville, (Kerr county), recently. As Mrs. Baron lifted the hen off the nest, the riled Biddy gave a quick kick backward, striking Mrs. Baron a hard blow on the right hand. An X-ray revealed the thumb had been fractured midway of the second joint.

Among the special shows which will be held at the State Fair of Texas, Dallas, October 8 to 23, are the Junior Agricultural Show, the Junior Pig Show, the Dairy Calf Show, the Junior Sheep Show, the Colt Show, the Junior Poultry Show, and the Capon Show. In addition to these special shows, two scholarships are offered two winning 4-H Club boys. These scholarships are each valued at $250, and are good for use at any State owned college.

That the dairy cow is becoming a more important factor in Texas agriculture is shown in figures just released by the United States Department of Agriculture placing this State fourth in the number of cows and heifers milked last year. On January 1, 1938, Texas farms had 1,322,000 cows, compared with 1,294,000 on the same date in 1937.

One of the Federal government's biggest battles against insect pests is now under way in the lower Rio Grande Valley, where complete eradication of the pink boll worm is the objective of a small army of men.

A turkey gobbler that watches over a brood of seven young turkeys is owned by Joe H. Duhon, of Beaumont, (Jefferson county). The gobbler will not allow the hens in the flock near his young wards, declines to roost and spends the night on the ground with the poults.

A new grasshopper trap has been invented in Potter county which has a back-board and wings to snare hoppers, throwing the pests into a pan of oil when they fly into the wings. The invention, 12 feet wide, is pulled by horses and is said to have caught approximately 200 gallons of hoppers daily.

The squirrel is going the way of the buffalo in some parts of East Texas, according to recent reports of P. D. Goodrun, Texas co-operative wildlife service. After investigating the situation he urges East Texans to cultivate squirrels as a game crop and suggests farmers set aside bottom land areas as squirrel ranges, or the squirrel may soon be no more.

Farm population in Texas remained virtually stationary during 1937, according to a survey recently completed by C. Horace Hamilton, economist in rural life, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. There was an increase in population amounting to approximately 1,000 people, but the number of farms operated decreased by more than 20,000. The total farm population on January 1, 1938, was found to be 2,291,000 and the number of farms 478,000.

Advantix, outstanding $15,000 Hereford bull, has been purchased for the Jinkins ranch in Madison county. Other fine cattle are being added to the ranch, which is becoming one of the show places of Madison county.

A total of 75,126 Texas farm families, or 15 per cent of all farm families in the State, do not have a poultry flock, according to Geo. P. McCarthy, poultryman of the Extension Service of Texas A. & M. College.

A cotton pickers' concentration camp for San Patricio county has been located at Sinton. Approximately an acre has been cleared, fenced and water and lights installed. A representative from the State Employment Service is in charge of the camp, which is equipped to accommodate 1,500 laborers at a time and will operate throughout the cotton season.

Secretary Wallace has announced the government will make loans on 1938 grown wheat at rates averaging between 59 and 60 cents a bushel to producers who want to hold their grain for better prices. Loan rates will average the minimum allowed by law, which is 52 per cent of the "parity" price of $1.14 per bushel.

Old-time cattle rustling bobbed up again in Houston county when Sheriff Arch Maples arrested three persons alleged to have been responsible for the disappearance of cattle from the J. D. Woodward ranch, six miles southeast of Crockett, at intervals since last February. The men, officers said, signed statements of guilt.

Six home-made rope making machines have been constructed by 4-H club boys in the Mahoney community, (Hopkins county). Prizes were awarded boys having the three best ropes in a recent contest.

County Agent C. M. Knight reports the Elberta peach crop in Red River county above average this year. Orchardists in the Avery community have sold their fair beauty peaches at from $1.50 to $1.75 per bushel.

Plans are under way by Mr. Howard Cox, of San Angelo, (Tom Green county), W. B. Mitchell, of Marfa, (Presidio county), and other authorities and lovers of Palomino horses to organize a Palomino association in Texas.

A novelty in farming in Kaufman county is a non-cotton farmer, R. L. McIntyre, living south of Kaufman. Mr. McIntyre has made a success of his farming plan, which includes 110 acres in cultivation and 40 acres in pasture. His crops include corn, feed, oats, barley, wheat, truck crops, orchard, sheep, cows, calves and chickens, but no cotton.

Winners in the 4-H club contests at the annual A. & M. College short course, recently concluded, were as follows: Elizabeth Harrison, of Alvarado, (Johnson county), who won the State clothing contest; Walter Briten, of Groom, (Carson county), and Cletis Clinton, of Minden, (Rusk county), who were outstanding 4-H club members and scholarship winners, and Mildred Hendricks, of Wharton county, second place winner in the clothing contest.

Six Frio county farmers have formed the nucleus of a game management demonstration in the county, and will place 44 signs on their fence boundaries to designate the restricted area of each farm. The movement will not only protect large game, such as deer and turkey, but quail and other birds as well.

County agent D. I. Dudley has announced that the Jackson county boys 4-H club crop judging team, composed of Oswald Ku-becks of the Cordele club, James H. Fenner of the Edna high school club and Johnnie Frankson of the Carancahua club, has been awarded second place in the State crop judging contest. The first five teams in each contest will return to College Station in September to compete against each other, with a trip to Chicago to compete in a contest with boys from other States as the winner's reward.

As cabbage cannot be canned without cooking it so long that it has a distasteful flavor and is very difficult to digest, Mrs. C. A. Prewitt, home food supply demonstrator for the Peachtree club, (Jasper county), is krauting her cabbage. After the cabbage is shredded, salt is mixed with it in the proportion of two ounces of salt to five pounds of cabbage. Cabbage is then placed firmly in a stone jar and covered with a cloth and a plate. A weight should be placed on the plate to cause the brine to come up to the cover. The cabbage is allowed to ferment until it has the transparent color of kraut. As scum forms on the top, it should be skimmed off. After fermentation is complete, the kraut is heated, packed into jars, sealed and processed for 30 minutes in a hot water bath.

Premiums that will cover every kind of fancy birds, including cash and ribbon premiums, have been announced for the Poultry Show by the State Fair of Texas, held at Dallas, October 8 to 23.

An English White Leghorn hen, owned by Frank Bonno of Dallas, set an egg laying record recently when it laid seven eggs in three hours. The eggs were of average size, but instead of a shell were covered only by a thin skin.

An air conditioning system for his poultry houses has been installed by P. G. Donaldson, of near Anthony, (Fannin county). The cool rooms aid in keeping up feed consumption and consequently egg production through hot summer months, Donaldson says.

Milking a cow as an aid to writing poetry is a practice of Marvin Miller, college freshman in Abilene, (Taylor county), whose poetry appears in magazines. Miller, now 19, claims the milk splashing in the bottom of the pail interprets itself to him in various kinds of rhythm and verse.

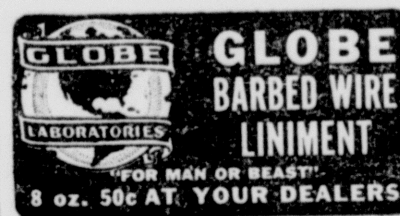

What is believed to be Texas' oldest bearing fig tree has been discovered on the premises of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Curtis, of Orange, (Orange county). The tree, planted 58 years ago this spring, is bearing a luxuriant crop this year and has borne annually except when late freezes interfered.

Dispatches from Washington reveal that the government will more than double its loans in the 1939 fiscal year to reduce farm tenancy. Distribution of funds will include $2,292,647 for Texas.

The largest real estate deal made in Parker county in some time was the recent sale of the Will P. Anderson 1,800-acre ranch, ten miles south of Weatherford, to F. H. Rhodes, (Jack county), for $42,000.

A stem of corn with 17 ears is being exhibited by G. D. Lowe, who lives near White Rock, (Dallas county). The corn was grown on a farm near Princeton, (Collin county), and had no shuck on it.

Texans have been warned by Dr. George W. Cox, State health officer, to take cognizance of the rapid spread of Malta or undulant fever, a disease contracted from livestock. So far 223 cases have been reported this year, he said. Although the mortality rate is low and State health officers see no cause for general alarm, caution should be used by those working with livestock by afterward washing hands and arms clean and applying antiseptics. All milk, including goat's milk, should be properly pasteurized.

These planters tell what they know about Camel's finer, more expensive tobaccos

"At the warehouse sales," says Leon Mullen, experienced planter, "Camel buys the choice grades of tobacco. That's the reason why most of us men who grow and know tobacco smoke Camel cigarettes. We certainly appreciate the difference in the tobacco Camel buys."

"Almost every one of my fine baskets of tobacco went to Camel buyers last year," says G. A. Langley, who knows tobacco growing from every angle. "Better tobaccos mean better smoking," he adds. "That means Camels to me—and to most other growers too."

Alton Barnes, a planter who has grown and graded many a fine crop, says this about Camels: "Year after year the choicest lots of my tobacco have gone to the Camel buyers. Naturally, we growers select the best tobacco for our own smoking. So we choose Camels."

"I know from experience that Camel buys choice tobaccos," says Mr. Cecil Claybourne, veteran planter. "Many's the time they've paid more to get my finest lots of tobacco. Yes, most of us planters smoke Camels. We sure find a difference in their finer tobaccos."

CHINA'S YELLOW RIVER

The Yellow river flood waters, that swept across China in June, wrecking buildings and drowning thousands of Chinese and Japanese, is 2,700 miles long, rises near Tibetan border and flows southward. It has been a menace and a blessing to China for thousands of years. The Great Plains through which it runs have been built up by the silt it has brought from the distant hills of Kansu, Shensi and Shansi. Their fertility depends upon it, even though it is at times a scourge which the Chinese are unable to combat. It got its name from the yellow mud which it carries, more than 40 per cent by weight at times. One cannot go in swimming in the river unless there is a pond of clear water near by with which to wash the mud from the body.

There is no river in the world which has a more spectacular history. It has wandered from its appointed way many times, it has been fought by millions of men from the days of the great flood recorded in 2287 B. C., more than 4,000 years ago. And it is yet unbeaten. Its vagaries in the summer, which is the time of high water, are unpredictable. The life of China in this rich, populous region containing 100,000,000 people is ruled by what the Yellow river may do.

There have been fourteen major breaks in the river since the Emperor Wu, in 2297 B. C., attempted to tame it by diverting it into several parallel channels. At one time it flowed north to Tientsin and entered the sea at Taku, and it kept to that course for seventeen centuries, which is the longest time it has behaved. From 1324 A. D. until 1852 it flowed south to enter the Yellow Sea in Kiangsu Province, and during this time it made a great sandbar in the sea many miles from the coast. At other times it has shifted between these two points, occasionally emptying into the Yangtze near Nanking, the course which it is flowing at this time.

of the present river which are said to be caused by villages that were drowned when the river left its bed in 1852. Excavations in Northern Honan have produced Shang Dynasty relics which indicate that towns were buried there 3,500 years ago by Yellow river mud. In 1887 a flood took 1,000,000 lives when the river left its bed west of Kaifeng and flowed toward the Yangtze.

But the Yellow river has nourished as well as killed, for along its banks have always been fertile farms where the people irrigate some of their lands by taking the rich, mud-filled water from the river. They are simple, agricultural people, raising wheat and millet and other crops on which the countryside subsists, for they have always been self-sufficient except in times of drouth and famine. Their houses are the simple huts of the Chinese peasant. Some of the people find a living in traffic on the river, for although it is not navigable for large boats, there is a certain amount of transportation in junks and on rafts held up by inflated skins.

But always the Chinese live in fear of the river. When floods come they burn prayer papers and ask the priests to aid them in holding back the floods. They watch the dikes they have built to curb the stream and plug the leaks by whatever simple means they can. The river gives them life when it gives them water for their fields, but in a night they and their families and all they own may be swept away, while the floods spread sand to the depth of many feet over their houses and fields.

And because of this the Chinese have become superstitious regarding Yellow river. A people who believe in dragons, who in large numbers think their lives are regulated by their ancestors and their many gods, they have naturally made of the river a symbol of supernatural power which is to be propitiated by any means. They (the mass of the plain peasants) believe that much of the trouble which the river causes is stirred up by the river dragons.

These are friendly dragons as a rule and not feared by the people who live behind the dikes that run from west of Chengchow—the city which Japan has been besieging—to the Gulf of Chihli. But sometimes these old dragons, guardians of the river, kick up their tails and attack the dikes, so that the water breaks through and flows over the flat land. So runs the legend. A more practically minded person might say that the Chinese Army dynamited the dikes this time to stop the Japanese army advance.

USEFUL DATE

Brazil, importing date palms, hopes to start a new business. So far as plants go, Brazil could scarcely have chosen a more useful fruit. Every part of this tree has commercial value. It is the most precious thing the desert produces.

From the flowers, Arabs make a beverage. They eat dates alone for weeks at a time, even feed them to camels and donkeys. Stale dates are converted into vinegar.

Date stones are toys to Arab boys and girls. When ground, the seeds yield oil, a coffee substitute and cattle food.

The leaves are woven into string, fans, mats, baskets and roof thatch. Branches are made into chairs, cradles, cages, beds and boats. The trunk is timber suitable for house-building and furniture.

Footstalks from the base of the palm can be used as fuel or be spun into cordage.

Date trees grow in Texas counties near the Rio Grande and produce fine fruit. So far, no attempt has been made to commercialize the date crop in Texas.

And they said one to another, Behold this dreamer cometh. Gen. 37:19.

DANNY RUNS AWAY

CHAPTER 1
"I know what I'll do," mumbled Danny Travis to himself, "I'll just run away. Then they'll be sorry—they'll wish they hadn't made me do all this old work."

It was a thoroughly disgusted, self-pitying boy that pushed the hay from the big barn into the mangers below. Danny Travis was an only son in a family of five sisters. He felt that he was mistreated and misunderstood. The fact that he must share the responsibilities of this growing family meant hours lost from hunting and playing with shaggy, his dog. His childhood reasoning could find nothing to be gained from farm work. So Danny decided to run away. He felt sure the outside world was a play world and only waiting to open its arms to him. Danny began to lay plans carefully.

It never occurred to the boy that his going away would worry his father and mother. All he wanted was to escape the hated duties of pushing down hay from the loft, carrying in fire wood, feeding the chickens and many other chores about the farm. Danny was sure in his own mind that he hated the farm. He wanted to be like the children in the city, who, he imagined, just run and play all day long!

"I hate this old place," he said to himself, as he angrily pushed a large fork-full of hay down the chute.

"Hi, there son, not so fast with that hay! You're wasting it," the voice of his father cautioned.

"Yes, sir," replied Danny, realizing it paid to be respectful to his parents. This rule had been taught all the Travis children with the aid of a small paddling board.

That evening, gathered around the supper table, the Travis family laughed and joked as they ate their wholesome meal. That is, all of them, except Danny. He sat picking at his food sullenly and silently.

"Eat your supper, Danny," his mother admonished.

"I'm not hungry," was his reply.

"He's just sulking 'cause he don't like to work," his oldest sister chided, looking at Danny with scorn.

"Danny's lazy—Danny's lazy—Danny's—," two of the other girls began singing in a chorus.

"Shut up," Danny shouted angrily and, rising, pushed his chair against the wall.

"Now children—now—please don't fuss," their mother pleaded, looking sympathetically at her son.

"I don't care," Danny retorted, "these old girls make me sick. I'm tired of it all; some day I'll just run away and then I'll show you—you—you—," the boy's face grew livid with anger and resentment as his pent up emotions choked back further words.

"That will do, son!" spoke his father, sharply. This remark brought instant silence, as Mr. Travis was a man of few words and highly respected by all his family. "Go to your room, Danny, and to bed," continued the father.

Danny stalked out of the room and up the narrow stairs to his bed-room. Here was a haven of refuge where he could come in time of trouble. It was the one strictly masculine place in the entire house. Here he kept his collection of frogs and snails. The walls were lined with pictures of hero baseball players, famous fliers and the various other heroes a boy admires. This was the only room his sisters were not permitted to invade and change to suit their own whims and fancies.

"Danny's room is to be his alone," was his mother's command many years ago. "You girls are never to go into son's room without his permission," she frequently warned.

Danny knew his sisters violated their mother's warning, however. Once he found his precious rock collection spilled all over the floor. Of course, the girls stoutly denied having anything to do with it—but Danny knew differently.

Slamming and locking the door behind him, Danny fell across his bed. Tears of anger and resentment filled his eyes, although he fought to keep them back.

"I'll show them—I'll show them," he repeated, as he looked at the picture of his favorite hero on the wall. "I'll just run away and be a great man like you are. Maybe, I'll go to New York and find you there. I bet you wouldn't let a fellow down." The picture of Joe Dee on the wall seemed to smile down at him; Joe's kindly eyes, he imagined, invited him to come and be his pal.

Carefully Danny began to plan. He must take enough things to be comfortable—yet not too much. He had heard men say, "travel light." Thinking to borrow Marie's little leather bag Aunt Jane had given her for Christmas present, and return it as soon as he got to New York, Danny crept cautiously across the hall to his sister's room.

After securing the bag and slipping back once again into his own room, he began to pull out drawers and examine their contents. He must take his luckiest fishing hook and line—he might need it to get food along the way. Then there was the hunting knife Uncle John had given him. He thought he had better take his butterfly collection—he might have to sell it to raise funds for transportation and food. A man had once told him his butterfly collection was worth a lot of money. So Danny sat down on the edge of his bed to think of all the things he would need to take with him.

"I haven't even put any clothes in the bag," he whispered to himself, as the thought of his mother ran through his mind. Danny loved his mother. He was about to falter, but his injured pride bolstered up his determination to run away. "I must stay angry," he again whispered, "or I'll not be able to leave."

Two extra shirts and an extra pair of pants went into the bag. At last everything was ready. His most cherished possessions were all packed with the clothes he had selected.

"I'll just get in bed with my clothes on and cover up with the sheet," thought Danny. "If

THERE is some one who is often called "The King of Beasts," and that some one is the lion. He is a very noble-looking and king-like beast, and he comes from Africa. In nearly all ways a lion is like a big cat, very closely related to your kitty-cat. Can you take a lead pencil and blot out all the unnecessary white lines of this tangle and leave nothing but the picture of a lion?

Ma comes to my room. I'll pretend to be asleep." Danny was beginning to feel a little tired; his anger no longer made his blood race through his veins. Looking up at the picture of Joe Dee, Danny half muttered: "I'll soon be with you—then they'll be sorry—"

CHAPTER II

Down the dusty road Danny trudged; he felt weary and lonely. The miles seemed to stretch out endlessly before him. He hadn't seen a single person for a long time. Suddenly he heard the hum of a car's motor behind him. He tried to dodge into the brush, but too late. He felt a blow on the side of his body—then the next instant a face was leaning over him—a face he knew so well.

HOBBY DEPARTMENT

Hobbies are of universal interest today. All over the world men and women, boys and girls are making interesting collections. Many of these enthusiastic collectors exchange objects with one another. This practice tends to increase friendship and understanding between people and nations. Are YOU one of these collectors? If you are, then I am sure this department will be of great interest to you.

Read the following rules for entering a letter on your hobby collection in this month's contest:

1. Write a letter of not more than 250 words describing your hobby and why you find it interesting and profitable.
2. For the most interesting and unusual letter we will award a cash prize of $1.00.
3. Write plainly on one side of the paper only. Write your name, address and age on the FIRST page of entry.
4. Any reader of this page may enter this contest without cost.
5. No entries can be returned. The decision of the judges is final. Address your letter to: Hobby Department, care of Aunt Mary, Rt. 5, Box 179-B, Fort Worth, Texas.

Prize Letter for August

Mabel A. Childers, Route 3, Huntsville, Texas, receives our congratulations and the one dollar prize for the best hobby letter this month. Here is the letter: "I find writing an interesting and pleasant hobby. Sometimes it is rhymes of small children like this one:

"I like to tell my Kate
About the nests of birds
And of the boys a diggin' bait
When I can find the worms."

"Then articles of a more serious nature. Once I tried to picture the eventide of life compared to the eventide of day. I find the hobby of writing not only keeps me from getting lonely, but has greatly improved my penmanship, reading and spelling. I often have to consult the dictionary. I was just entering the fourth grade when I quit school. Now I am past the half century mark in life, and can truly say one never gets too old to learn."

Honorable Mention

The judges wish to extend honorable mention to the following for their excellent entries in the hobby contest: Lucy Von Spradley, McGregor, Texas, whose hobby is collecting butterflies; Irene Vinson, Henderson, Texas, whose hobby is a very fine stamp collection; Bobbie Lee Jackson, Oglesby, Texas, foreign correspondence, and Georgia S. Novak, Wallis, Texas, who collects various house plants.

Send us your Hobby Letter this month!

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

There have been so many letters in recent months requesting revival of the Shut-In Club, I am going to put it to a vote of the readers. The question is: Would you like to have the Sunshine for Shut-Ins Club started again?

If there are a sufficient number of letters from readers saying they would like to be members of this club again, we will reopen club headquarters in October. Merely drop a penny postcard (or letter) to Aunt Mary, Club Department, Route 5, Box 179-B, Fort Worth, Texas, and say, "I would like to belong to the Sunshine Club." Sign your full name, address and age. This applies to those who were formerly members AND those who would like to belong to the club now. It is up to you!

STORIES IN POETRY

We would like to have original unpublished poems for this page. If you have a choice poem you have written, send it in and if possible we will use it on the Boys' and Girls' Page. I feel sure all of us would like to (Continued next column)

Anna Mae Colon, Agra, Oklahoma, again sends us a lovely picture in verse. The poem, below, is by Louis Hastings.

The Way to Grow Beautiful

For your lips use truth.
For your voice use prayer.
And if your eyes show pity
Kindness will be there.

For the hands there's charity
And love should do its part.
Uprightness helps the figure
And keeps God in your heart.

DEATH LEVELS ALL

In the democracy of the dead all men at last are equal. There is neither rank nor station nor prerogative in the republic of the grave. At this fatal threshold the philosopher ceases to be wise, and the song of the poet is silent. Dives relinquishes his millions and Lazarus his rags. The poor man is as rich as the richest, and the rich man is as poor as the poorest. The creditor loses his usury, and the debtor is acquitted of his obligation. There the proud man surrenders; the invalid needs no physician, and the laborer rests from unrequited toil.

Here at last is Nature's final decree in equity. The wrongs of time are redressed. Injustice is expiated, the irony of Fate is refuted; the unequal distribution of wealth, honor, capacity, pleasure and opportunity, which makes life such a cruel and inexplicable tragedy, ceases in the realm of death. The strongest there has no supremacy, and the weakest needs no defence. The mightiest captain succumbs to that invincible adversary, who disarms alike the victor and the vanquished. —John J. Ingalls.

"WHO'S THERE?"

"Who's that knocking at my door?" is a needless question in the home of one English inventor. He's built a gadget into his front door which enables him to see who's doing the knocking. It comprises a series of lenses focused through a small hole in the door. Images of visitors are reflected on a 3-inch mirror inside.

But getting a look at callers before the door is opened is an old custom in one American city, Philadelphia. It's done with mirrors, called "a busybody," and hung from an upper window.

Two mirrors, joined at an angle on the house side, show who's walking up and down the street. A third mirror, slanted from the horizontal above these two, reflects callers at the front door.

According to one story, the Philadelphia busybody was invented by a man who owed many bills, couldn't pay them, and consequently didn't want to open his door to collectors. But after he invented the busybody, it sold so well he had no debts to worry about.

MORE PRECIOUS THAN GOLD

More precious than gold to Central Australian miners is wolframite, a tungsten ore. With the price of this rare mineral boosted by war munitions demands, hundreds of gold miners are trekking to wolfram fields. One gold town reports half its population gone and the rest preparing to move.

Like gold, this mineral is valuable in small quantities. But even so, you probably use some of its product, tungsten, every day.

Tungsten is used as a filament for electric light bulbs and the wires are one-sixth the width of a human hair. To make such minute threads the metal is drawn through holes bored in diamonds.

Valuable when mixed with other metals, tungsten can be subjected to great heat without losing its usefulness. It does not melt until raised to over 3,000 degrees, centigrade. This is why hard tungsten-steel is used for high-speed cutting tools, X-ray tubes, electrical equipment and other apparatus which must be able to withstand exceptionally high temperatures.

So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom. Psal. 90:12.

THE DEADLY OCTOPUS

An octopus helped to test a new diving suit near Sydney, Australia, recently. The octopus, six feet from tip to tip, pounced on the helmet of a test diver and refused to let go even though the diver inflated his suit and shot to the surface!

Two things saved this man from injury and possibly death: The octopus had no other support to which it could cling, after tackling the metal helmet first.

When an octopus sights a moving object, it uses half its eight legs to grasp the thing, and the other half to hold to some anchor. Then it pulls its victim to its mouth, which is a parrot-like beak that can rip a diver to shreds in a few minutes.

Some of these sea killers, measuring 30 feet from tip to tip, have been caught in the Gulf of California. An octopus 6 feet long is strong enough, however, to subdue and kill a human being.

CO-OPERATION

We are taught, many of us, from our youth onwards, that competition is essential to the health and progress of the race. Or, as Herbert Spencer puts it, "Society flourishes by the antagonism of its atoms." But the obvious golden truth is that co-operation is good and competition bad, and that society flourishes by the mutual aid of human beings. I say that is obvious, and so it is. And it is so well known that in all great military or commercial enterprises individualism has to be subordinated to collective action. We do not believe that a house divided against itself shall stand; we believe that it shall fall.

We know that a State divided by internal feuds and torn by faction fighting can not hold its own against a united people. We know that in cricket or football teams, a regiment, a ship's crew, a school, the "antagonism of the atoms" would mean defeat and failure. We know that society composed of antagonistic atoms would not be a society at all, and could not exist as a society. We know that if men are to be found to govern cities, to build bridges and make roads, to establish universities, to sail ships and sink mines, and create educational systems, and policies and religions, they must work together and not against one another. Surely these things are as obvious as the fact that there could be no hive unless the bees worked as a colony and on the lines of mutual aid.—Robert Blatchford.

NIAGARA FALLS EROSION

Niagara Falls is rapidly eating itself away, so Canadian authorities want United States help in stopping its erosion. The falls back up two and a half feet a year. That's because Niagara river runs over hard rock, under which lies soft rock. Water washes out the soft support, leaves the hard rock hanging until, at last, it breaks off and thunders into the gorge below.

In 1931, some 75,000 tons of this hard rock broke off on the American side. Geologists commented that this was the way the falls had retreated seven miles from its original site. In a few more thousand years, there'll be no falls at all, say geologists.

Canada worries more about the prospect, for 90 per cent of the water in Niagara leaps over her side of the falls.

Painting With Threads

How many of you remember the old oaken bucket that was iron bound? How do you like this replica of it? It is stamped on soft cream color linen to be embroidered in yarns, floss or other threads. Browns and green may be interspersed with bright bits of color here and there. This will prove a most economical addition to your decorative scheme for all your odds and ends may be pressed into service, and neither glass nor frame will be needed. Simply work the easy border in pleasing color, line with what your scrap bag produces and hang either from a rod, dowel stick, or loops.

Number C8467M, for only 25c, measures about 17x27 inches and comes to you nicely stamped and ready to work. If you prefer stamping this on your own material, ask for number C8467T, 10c. This brings you a NUMO hot iron transfer good for several stampings. Address all letters to Southwest Magazine, Needlecraft Dept., P. O. Box 166, Kansas City, Missouri.

STYLE SHADOWS

The old saying, "Coming events cast their shadows before them," is certainly true of the lovely fall styles. Among forecasts for autumn and winter fashions we find a cloud arising on the style horizon—it is ink-blue, taking place along-side black as a leading fall color.

Looking closer at the silhouette, we find some interesting details. Fall styles bring higher necklines. One model provides the wearer with a scarf that can be tied in a bow on the shoulder or at the back. A lovely "sawing" dress is finished with a tiny frill and small bob-like ornament at the center. Some designers follow the collar-bone line, permitting the throat to rise like a white pillar above the dark frame.

Sleeve forecasts indicate many unusual effects. The dolman sleeve is again in foreground. Its lines have been softened to eliminate the thick, clumsy appearance of this type of sleeve, and they may be used in either long or three-quarter lengths.

Shoulders are coming up again. Some sleeves are stiffened to stand high, like the rounded end of a paddle, petals of the chrysanthemum serving as models for others. A third type requires the shoulder of the bodice be carried well out beyond the curve of the arm and cut in architectural designs to meet the sleeve.

Yokes, or suggestions of a yoke line, seem to be returning, but no set rule is evident to govern size or style. There are round ones, square ones and those that run off the shoulder. Some are large, some small; others in between.

The new summer color, ink-blue, is deep and rich with the cool appearance of night shadows. Many women who do not look their best in black will find the new color most flattering.

Do not forget taffeta when designing your summer wardrobe. Its cool crispness makes it a favorite. If you plan to take a summer trip, be sure to include a plaid taffeta coat. They shed dust and moisture quite successfully, enabling one to arrive at destination looking fresh for any occasion. In addition the bright color combinations are cheerful and decorative.

A crochet blouse or gimpie is another item well worth the traveler's consideration. They can be rolled, twisted or jammed, yet come out without a wrinkle; are also easily laundered. The newest ones have frilly crochet bosoms trimmed with crocheted faked tucks.

Hand-knitted silk evening gowns with boleros to match are very smart. Their long threads of cobweb lightness make them fresh and clinging. The floor-length gowns, molding the figure beautifully, have a square décolletage cut very low in front. The bolero may have long or short sleeves or none at all. A dull gold belt gives a touch of restrained richness.

SUMMER BEAUTY HINTS

How to keep lovely, comfortable and graceful during the trying summer months is a problem to baffle the wits of the most intelligent woman.

Nothing is more important than care of your skin. First and most important factor in this care is cleanliness. A thorough daily cleansing is necessary for a radiant skin. Twice a week, at least, you should take a leisurely soaking bath in a tub of tepid water. Soaking helps to loosen the dead layers of skin. After soaking, work up a lather with a mild soap, using a rough rag or a good bath brush.

On "between" days use a cool shower, or sponge off, to keep the skin fresh and dainty.

Tub baths may be made more enticing and beneficial if a few drops of eau de cologne or fragrant bath salts are used in the water. Some stores now have a new buttermilk powder that, when added to hard water, acts as a softener. It forms a good lather and adds a delightful fragrance to any kind of water.

If you react properly to a cold water shower, it is an excellent stimulant. Afterwards rub yourself thoroughly with a soft bath towel and dust with a good bath powder.

Use of a good cleansing cream for neck, face and arms is an aid to beauty. Apply a cream that cleanses the pores and follow with an astringent, then a nourishing cream to replenish the natural oils. If the skin shows signs of wrinkling or weariness, apply a cooling mask of one of the new rejuvenating creams.

Olive oil has long been a favorite for dry skin. If excessive dryness persists, use olive oil as a cleanser both morning and night. Liquefying creams have a tendency to dry out a sensitive skin. Give your skin the best care you can afford; results will repay you many times.

Do not overlook proper diet. Foods you eat have a great deal to do with your personal appearance. Study the effects of various foods on the body. Proper elimination is also necessary for a clear and unblemished skin.

DO YOU HAVE POISE?

Here are a few rules that, if followed, will attain poise with charm:

1. Never talk about yourself to the exclusion of other topics.
2. Keep informed on current, worthwhile events and be sure your information is correct.
3. Don't argue needlessly. This is an important point.
4. Be natural. Affectation is both foolish and unbecoming.
5. Conversation about your troubles make you a bore and has a depressing effect on listeners.

Above all, remember a smile goes "miles" farther than a frown.

GOOD RECIPES

Here are a few recipes to help you solve that old problem of, "What shall we eat today?" They are delightful.

Frozen Cheese Salad

3 cream cheeses
1½ cups chopped dates
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup whipping cream.

Cream the cheese, add lemon juice and salt. Whip the cream, fold in cheese and dates. Pack in mold or refrigerator tray, freeze until firm. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Ginger Ale Salad

2 tablespoons gelatine (soak in 2 tablespoons water 5 minutes)
Add to gelatine:
½ cup hot water
1 cup ginger ale

¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
Cool this mixture. Then Add:
½ cup diced apples
2 tablespoons crystallized ginger
4 tablespoons crushed pineapple
1 cup diced celery.
½ teaspoon salt.
Pour into mold and chill. Serve on crisp lettuce.

Anchovy Paste

Take cream cheese (small package) enough anchovy to suit taste. Mix roll or cut any shape to suit. Can be toasted.

Cheese Dreams

1 lb. old English cheese, ½ lb. butter, little salt, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, cream

all together so it will spread easily. Cut very fresh bread in thin slices, remove crust, spread with mixture and roll up. Toast under broiler and serve hot.

Stuffed Egg Plant

1 large egg plant
1 cup bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup minced ham
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper.

Cut egg plant in halves. Cook gently in boiling salted water until tender, but not soft. Lift out of water and place on platter, cut side down to drain. Then scoop out pulp and chop fine. Add bread crumbs, ham and seasoning. Fill shells, cover tops with fine crumbs and dot with butter or grated cheese. Bake in hot oven until well browned.

Red Currant Tapioca

2½ cups prepared red currants
1 cup sugar
2 cups water
¼ cup quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt.

Stem and wash currants, add ½ cup sugar, cover, and heat slowly until sugar is dissolved and currants burst open; cool. Place water in top of double boiler and bring to a boil over direct heat. Combine tapioca, remaining ½ cup sugar, and salt; add gradually to water and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly. Place immediately over rapidly boiling water and cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool—mixtures clears and thickens as it cools. When slightly cool, fold in fruit. Chill. Serve in sherbet glasses with plain or whipped cream. Serves 6.

PREDATORY INSECTS

The German army has gone to war, but only to battle against insects. The fight is with June bugs and even with an army of men to gather the bugs into great piles and burn them, it will be a long campaign. Grubs of the June bug live underground and eat plant roots for several years, then become beetles which eat leaves.

Germany isn't the only country damaged by plant pests, though. In the United States June bugs take their toll in several Southern States.

Also in the South, cotton growers must deal with the boll weevil, flea hopper and leaf worm. May beetles plague pecan growers. Bothersome the country over are army worms, cutworms, tomato worms.

Other of our more prominent pests are the grasshopper, tent caterpillar, codling moth, bean beetle, potato leafhopper, cankerworm, cinch bug, apple and pea aphids and corn ear worm.

Grasshoppers have been unusually destructive this year. Texas farmers are poisoning them by the millions with bran mash and arsenic mixtures.

Scientists claim insects were on the earth before the coming of man and that they will be here after man is gone.

COWGIRL, 15, RODEO CHAMP

At 15 Eva May Wilken, route 1, box 3-F, Ysleta, Texas, is the youngest champion girl rodeo performer.

Though riding only three years, Eva is an all-around cowgirl. In a recent El Paso, Texas, rodeo she cleaned up 119 points, only one behind the boy champ. She even gained victories in the difficult calf riding and roping events.

"Some of the prizes I won were $15 in cash, a theater pass, a pair of dresser lamps and a large table lamp," she writes.

All these are in addition to the grand prize of a hand-carved saddle valued at $150. "Besides my riding," says Eva, "my brother and I raise some registered cattle."

THE FOOT-PATH TO PEACE

To be glad of life, because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars; to be satisfied with your possessions, but not contented with yourself until you have made the best of them; to despise nothing in the world except falsehood and meanness, and to fear nothing except cowardice; to be governed by your admirations rather than by your disgust; to covet nothing that is your neighbor's except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manners; to think seldom of your enemies, often of your friends and every day of Christ; and to spend as much time as you can with body and with spirit, in God's out-of-doors—these are little guideposts on the foot-path of peace.—Henry Van Dyke.

THE MOSQUITO PROBLEM

What to do about mosquitoes is an international problem, as serious in the Arctic and on burning deserts as it is in Australia and the United States. There are 200 known varieties of this insect, entomologists say. A single female mosquito can leave, at the end of one season, as many as 160,000,000 descendants.

Baby mosquitoes, however, must have stagnant water in which to live. They must also be able to come to the surface for air. So they can be eliminated, to a certain extent, by draining pools, draining old tin cans, buckets and removing rank manure and rank weeds. Coating water with oil to shut off air will also help to destroy mosquitoes and mosquito larva.
